SPRING WEATHER finally arrived in style in Carmel last week, as warm, sunny days attracted people to the beach for sunbathing, surfing, and an occasional dip in the icy waters.

A RESPITE from the cares of the day was afforded this young man on the soft grass at Devendorf Park as spring fever gripped Carmelites. The park is especially lush with new growth.

ICE CREAM cools the palate in warm weather, as Leigh Hartman of Carmel discovered one sunny afternoon last week. (Photos by M. Gardner and R. Miskimon).

Carmel Woods group plans annexation effort

By ROBERT MISKIMON

NARROWLY DEFEATED in an election three years ago, proponents of annexation of the unincorporated Carmel Woods area to Carmel-by-the-Sea are ready to try again.

A group of Carmel Woods residents has formed a committee known as Carmel Annexation Now II (CAN II), with J.M. Vesel as chairman and John Carley as vice-chairman.

The group plans to apply for annexation to the Local Agency Formation Commission before the question is brought before the Carmel City Council for action.

Vesel is scheduled to make a presentation on the committee's plans at the Carmel City Council meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 4.

An election in 1979 to determine whether the Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields areas should be annexed to Carmel failed by a narrow margin. Vesel said he believes support among Carmel Woods residents is strong enough for annexation of that area.

Mike Johnson, executive officer of LAF-CO, said annexation proceedings would begin when a petition which bears the signatures of at least 5 percent of the registered voters in the area proposed for annexation is filed.

The Monterey County Elections Department indicated there are 1,321 registered voters in the Carmel Woods area.

When the initial petition is filed, with maps and legal descriptions of the proposed annexation area, LAF-CO either approves or disapproves of annexation and the question goes to the city council for a protest hearing, Johnson indicated.

If fewer than 25 percent of the registered voters in the area proposed for annexation protest, then the city council must approve annexation without an election.

Water conservation program could cut use by 15 percent

How MUCH money is water conservation worth?

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Manager Bruce Buel has proposed a conservation program that is intended to cut use by 15 percent, but will also cost an estimated $30,000.

Buel wants to enlist financial help for the program from the Carmel Sanitary District and the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency, but so far has failed to garner enthusiastic support.

The Carmel City Council rejected a request by Buel in November to allocate $700 for a retrofit program in the village. The majority of the council felt the program was not cost-effective.

Seaside was the only city on the Peninsula to approve Buel's program and 8,000 retrofit kits will be distributed there in September.

Buel met with managers Michael Zambory of the Carmel Sanitary District and Bob Jacques of the regional agency April 22 in an attempt to draw up a full proposal on who would pay the costs of a conservation program and what kinds of projects would be included in the plan.

However, no agreement was reached and the issue will be discussed again when a committee of representatives of the three agencies meets May 13.

Buel has proposed that the three agencies pool their resources and hire a full-time employee to oversee a public education program and develop a plan to distribute a water-saving kit to Peninsula households.

But the three agency managers could not reach agreement on the extent of such a program and how the costs could be divided.

One snag in the plan, according to all three, is that there are no definitive cost-saving benefits for the two sanitary agencies.

"For the water district, there is a tremendous benefit. It's more cost effective to decrease demand than to increase supply," Buel said.

But for the sewer agencies, Buel said the key benefit is reducing the flow. "The less water you have going through the pipes makes it easier," he said.

Zambory said "there is still a lot of work needed" on the program.

He questioned whether water users, who are also charged sewer fees, would experience double-taxation for the conservation program.

"There are a lot of assumptions. They assume the retrofits will be installed," Zambory said.

"What effect will this have on our flow and what kind of savings will we have? I don't know," he said.

However, he added: "I think, right now, if I personally owned the Carmel Sanitary District, I would be willing to put up some money. Maybe $2,000, but not $10,000 or $20,000."

Zambory admitted that the state will require the district to develop a conservation program contingent on Carmel receiving funds for its $18.2 million water reclamation project.

However, he said he doubted if the state Water Resources Control Board would demand such a comprehensive program as Buel has proposed.

DESPITE THE hesitancy expressed by Zambory, Buel said it is imperative that some kind of program be adopted.

The water district has announced plans to cut use by 15 percent by the year 2020 and such a program could achieve the goal, Buel said. Fifteen percent of the district water supply is 4,500 acre feet, he added.

"To achieve that goal we will have to launch an extensive water conservation program," Buel said. "But it can be done."

Buel said that to promote water conservation and pay for retrofit devices, it would cost the district an estimated $38 an acre foot.

But this compares to the cost of a proposed dam, which would range between $243 and $486 an acre foot, he said.

The proposed dam for the upper Carmel River area carries an estimated $43.8 million price tag to store 27,000 acre feet of water.

If the conservation program proves successful in cutting use by 15 percent, the average household would save approximately $100 a year, Buel said.

"The big savings is stalling or not building the dam," he said.

The program would include the distribution of a kit that would contain retrofit devices for showers and a bag for the toilet.

The bag would save approximately 22 percent of the total water use in a household on the peninsula, Buel said. It would limit the amount of water flushed to three and one-half gallons.

The retrofit device would slow the shower water flow and would save another 15 percent per household, he said.

A public education program would be modeled after a successful project in Santa Cruz where an employee would "teach students to teach their parents about water conservation," said Buel.

"You build sort of an ethic. It's a long-range thing. It won't have an immediate payoff," he said.

The three agencies will meet at 3 p.m. May 13 in the water district office in Monterey.

Next move is up to county supervisors to cooperate

By ROBERT MISKIMON

SUPERVISOR William Peters of Carmel Valley made a very worthy suggestion last week to the Carmel City Council: let's communicate and cooperate on matters of mutual concern instead of suing first and asking questions later.

It's a long time overdue to hear that kind of overture from an elected official, particularly in the arena of city-county government, where the legal clashes have been frequent and intense. We'll give Supervisor Peters the benefit of the doubt and not assume that his peace offering was intended to divert another threatened lawsuit by the city of Carmel over the Carmel Valley Master Plan environmental impact report, scheduled for a certification hearing in Salinas May 11.

Taxpayers' money is involved whenever governmental agencies sue each other, and for that reason alone Supervisor Peters' proposal should be given serious consideration.

On the other hand, we can't forget that there are reasons why the city of Carmel has seen fit to bring legal action against the county on at least seven occasions in recent years. In the area of planning land use, development in and around Carmel Valley, and environmental controls, citizens of not only Carmel Valley but Carmel-by-the-Sea have developed a mistrust that county government will act and react in their best interests.

It has not been simply a matter of headstrong elected officials in Carmel becoming lawsuit-happy with all the excess funds in the city treasury, as was suggested by Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas during the last hearing on the Carmel Valley Master Plan EIR.

THE CONCERN of many people in Carmel and Carmel Valley has been that county government is basically insensitive to their wants and needs, and that this insensitivity has been reflected in tunnel-vision decisions related to a broad range of issues which affect quality of life. If the gesture by Supervisor Peters is an indication that the channels of communications are truly opened, then that is a positive sign, indeed.

The kind of communication which will be required to bring about harmony must have as a basis full public involvement and participation of residents of the Valley and Carmel, as well as their elected officials. The study sessions which Supervisor Peters suggested as one approach to develop better trust and communication between municipal and county governments would be acceptable only if they do not produce the same type of atmosphere of compromise and negotiation which is perceived by many citizens to have been an objectionable part of the county role in development of the Local Coastal programs for Carmel, Big Sur, and Del Monte Forest.

Here is an opportunity to move forward in a constructive manner provided it is fully exploited in the proper spirit by all parties and provided there is a high level of sincerity and trust by all involved. An initial step toward realization of this ideal may be the May 11 board of supervisors hearing on the Carmel Valley Master Plan EIR, when many issues which involve differences between the county and Carmel/Carmel Valley residents will come into sharp focus.

That's where Supervisor Peters and the county supervisors will have the chance to put their money where their mouths are.

letters

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

What's next?

Dear Editor:

I think it was Odgen Nash who wrote: "The trouble with a kitten is that eventually it becomes a cat."

The Carmel City Council, whether they know it or not, is obviously obsessed with the truism of this little verse. A leash law for cats? Good grief! What should we expect next from our esteemed council? Diapers for dogs? I await their action with bated breath.

Supports the strikers

Dear Editor:

I have just read Judy McCurdy's letter concerning the employees' quarrel with "Bruno's." Several weeks ago I read her husband's good letter. I have also read what the store owners said.

For years I have been an occasional customer of the market. At each change of ownership, there was faithful, cheerful Judy, spreading goodwill and friendliness. I am amazed that an employer would break faith with so steadfast an employee. It had to happen sometime, I guess. Luck ran out.

Peaceful picketing demonstrates resistance to arbitrary behavior. It must take a lot of patience to suffer abuse for a principle. After 26 years on the same job, one does not want to just walk away.

I am supporting Judy and her quest for justice.

Sacramento Report:

By ASSEMBLYMAN SAM FARR

"Things are so big they don't work anymore; in many cases we should abandon trying to 'refine' what we have, because a complete overhaul is needed."

That's what I wrote in a column back in December.

One of the costliest problems lies in the state-county relationship, in which the two share control, responsibilities and costs for numerous programs. The state meddles in areas best left to the control of local government, and counties are handling programs that could be consolidated and managed from Sacramento with less duplication, overhead and operational expense.

I have introduced a measure, AB 3231, that would begin that major overhaul. The bill directs the Assembly Office of Research to study the feasibility of specific proposals to transfer responsibilities from the state to the counties and from the counties to the state, as appropriate.

For example, administration of alcohol and drug abuse programs should probably be up to the counties. Yet the state Department of Alcohol and Drug Programs employs some 800 persons, with a budget of more than $100 million a year. And, on the other side, the food stamp program could be made more efficient by centering its administration in Sacramento.

Much of this probably sounds like a replay of President Reagan's "New Federalism," in which the federal government throws up its hands and says, "We give up; you guys (the states) handle it!" The difference here is that my bill directs our "best and brightest" independent analysis to study the issues carefully and then make specific suggestions.

So balanced is this approach that the principal co-author to my AB 3231 is Assemblyman Bob Naylor, the leader of the Republicans in the Assembly. I expect solid, bipartisan support for the bill, especially from those members like me who have spent many years trying to "implement" the contradictory, confusing, wasteful mandates handed down from Washington and Sacramento.

If passed, this proposal will let us rewrite the book on how to get more services and efficiency out of shrinking tax dollars.

I believe it deserves the support of every person who is interested in effective public administration, and I urge you to write me a postcard or letter of support soon.

A SPECIAL gift of an American flag was made last week by former Police Chief Bill Ellis (left) to Chief John McGilvray, along with a framed letter of presentation. The letter states that Ellis left the flag to the office of police chief upon his retirement Dec. 30, 1981. "This flag was presented to me as chief of police by the Carmel American Legion Post 512 in 1976 and it should remain in this honored place," Ellis' letter states.

Condominium project faces stringent review by Carmel planning officials

By ROBERT MISKIMON

STRINGENT REVIEW by the city of Carmel, including an environmental impact, report awaits $25 million plans to develop 60 condominiums on a two-acre site formerly occupied by Carmel Builders Supply.

The parcels on Junipero Street between Third and Fourth avenues were sold last week for $8 million by Tom Handley to Southern California developer Christopher Wojciechowski.

The land is zoned R-4 for multiple-family residential use, and condominiums would be a permitted use in that zone, said Carmel City Administrator Douglas Peterson.

However, the size of the project and its potential impacts upon the village would necessitate preparation of an environmental impact report, Peterson said.

And the city must review and approve specific elements of the project — such as building height and size, lot coverage, landscaping, parking and architectural design — before the construction can commence, he added.

"We haven't seen any plans yet," Peterson said. "A committee of the planning commission would probably take a look at it first. The fire department would also have to look at it. I would suspect that a project of that magnitude would also require an environmental impact report."

The developer indicated he plans to construct the condominiums in two phases, the first of which would include 16 units — at an estimated sale price of $500,000 each — to be built on a 20,000 sq. ft. parcel at the northwest corner of Junipero and Fourth.

Second phase would include up to 44 additional units on a 57,000 sq. ft. parcel at Junipero, Torres and Third. The condo units would each be 1,600 sq. ft. and would be constructed on a single level, Wojciechowski indicated.

Any significant revisions in land use in the area could further restrict what can be done with the recently-sold parcel.

In addition to the normal city hall review and control over any development plans on the site, another factor which may modify development plans is the revision of the 1973 Carmel General Plan.

The General Plan Advisory Committee has scheduled a number of meetings with its consultant, Earth Metrics of Burlingame, to revise and update the plan. Any significant revisions in land use in the area could further restrict what can be done with the recently-sold parcel.

"During a general plan revision process, anything is possible," Peterson said. He conceded that the project could be delayed while the general plan is revised by the committee and by the planning commission, before it goes to the city council for adoption.

"YES, IT WILL absolutely come up," said Mrs. Jane Mayer, chairwoman of the General Plan Advisory Committee. She said the committee probably will want to review the R-4 zoning in light of the proposed development.

"I guess it will come up under the housing, open space, and land use elements of the general plan. If it is approved, I certainly hope there will be some planning made for low cost and/or elderly housing, if something goes in there."

"Personally, I think we've got a lot of condos now. I wish they could make it residential. There may be a stalling period while the general plan is being revised."

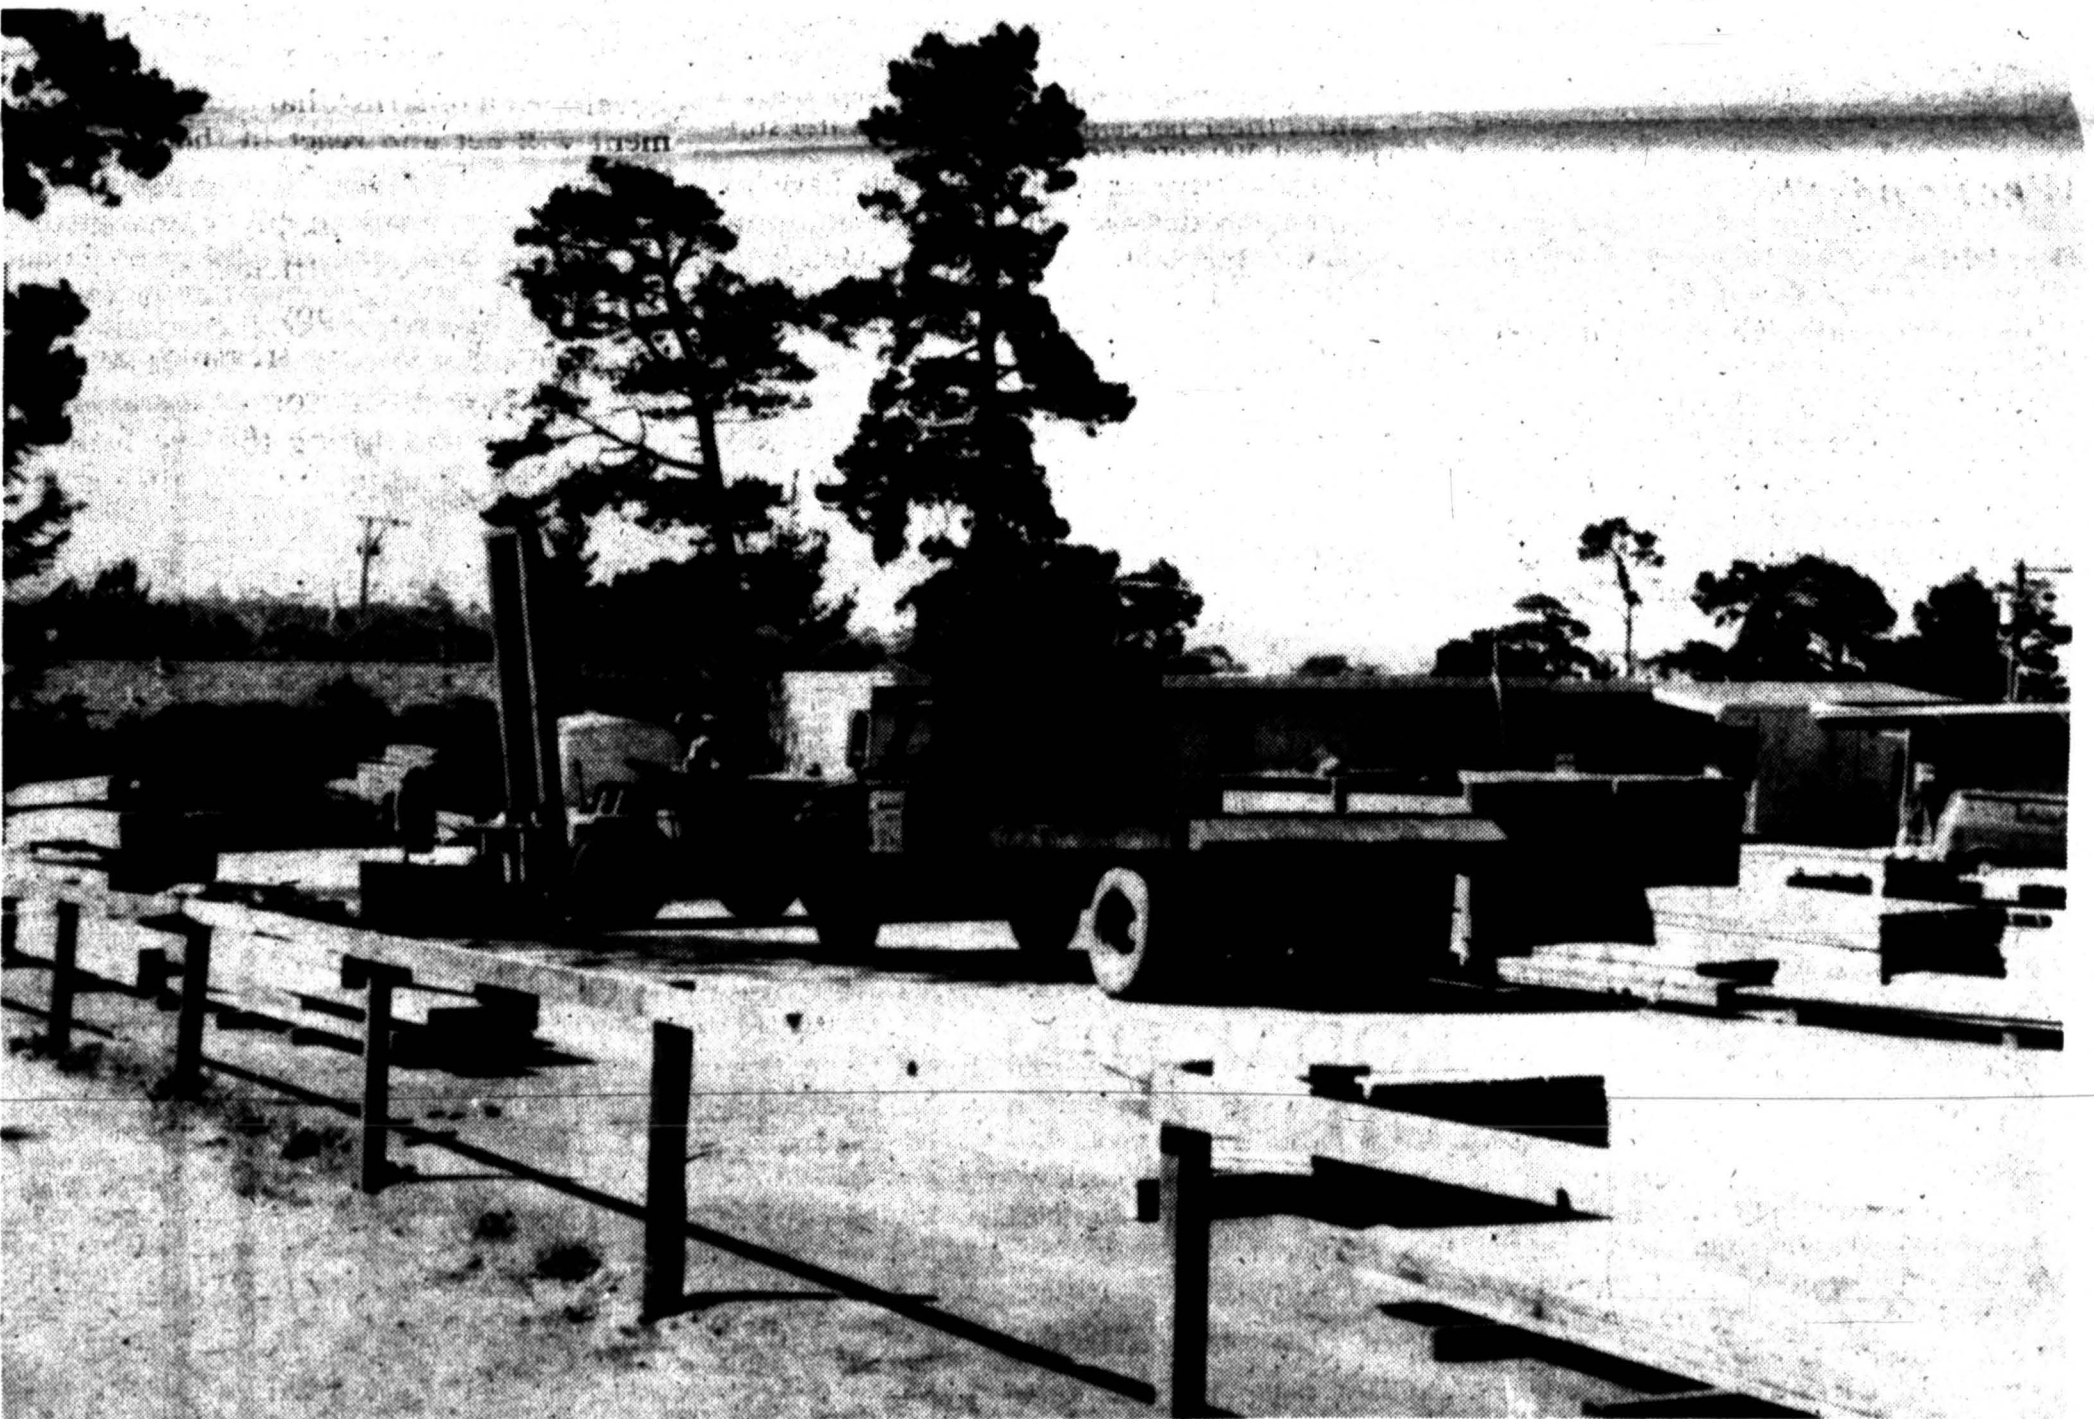

Sandy Swain, acting chairwoman of the Carmel Planning Commission, called the proposal "a little mind-boggling."

"We down-zoned that parcel from commercial to R-4 because we thought condominiums would be a very fine use there," Swain said. "But I have some reservations and concerns that these units are going to be for those who are wealthy."

"We will have to look at it very closely. Whatever we do, we'll have to move very cautiously. I'd like to get some public input about it."

THE FIRST of two parcels which developer Christopher Wojciechowski hopes to develop into 16 condominium units is located on the west side of Junipero Street between Third and Fourth avenues, and includes about 20,000 sq. ft. of space.

THE LARGEST of the two parcels formerly occupied by Carmel Builder's Supply is this 57,000 sq. ft. parcel on the east side of Junipero Street, which has a sweeping view of Point Lobos and Carmel Bay. The purchaser hopes to build up to 44 condo units.

A remembrance of Carmel Builder's Supply

'The men of C.B.S.'

Dear Editor:

Here's a few words for those gallant men, before that final day, who ran the best of lumberyards in Carmel-by-the-Bay.

First of all there's Art who knows much more of wood than any fifty termites or beavers ever could.

And there should be a statue cast of Vince the "Good," and I hope He's always walking in my neighborhood.

One day when God was busy creating this and that, steeplejacks and underwear basketballs and cats,

He stopped to think and wonder "How should a bookkeeper look?" Then someone flashed a picture of Bruce and that was all it took.

To one and all good luck in what ever trade and to the man who needs it most old Steve "no problem" Wade.

And so the time has come to raise your glasses high to the men of Carmel Builders and that big yard in the sky.

Supervisors may certify Master Plan EIR May 11

By ROBERT MISKIMON

AN ENVIRONMENTAL impact report on the Carmel Valley Master Plan may be certified by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors May 11 — without a fuller inventory of proposed "trigger mechanisms."

A continued public hearing is to be reopened at 3 p.m., Tuesday, May 11 for additional testimony on the document intended to guide revision of the 1980 Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Perhaps the biggest uncertainty in the process is whether the city of Carmel will make good on its threat to sue the county if those environmental controls are not more fully addressed.

Trigger mechanisms are devices which would build into the Master Plan guarantees that construction permits in Carmel Valley would be halted when certain air, water, traffic and noise pollution levels are reached.

Sedway/Cooke, the San Francisco consultant which prepared the EIR for Monterey County, has labelled the trigger devices "untried and possibly unfeasible" for implementation in Carmel Valley. The consultant noted that implementation of trigger devices in the Tahoe Basin cost some $500,000.

Carmel City Atty. George Brehmer has told the board of supervisors it could face another lawsuit by the city of Carmel if every possible means to control environmental deterioration — including the trigger mechanisms — is not explored.

"We suggested trigger mechanisms for consideration but we don't see any evidence they were evaluated," Brehmer told supervisors at a Feb. 2 hearing on the EIR. "That's where the legal problems will arise. Our concern is that a plan not be rubber-stamped. If the board takes shortcuts you will be building in the basis for a legal challenge."

A majority of the board of supervisors appears to favor certification of the EIR without further expenditures for a more thorough exploration of the proposed trigger devices.

Fifth District Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley said he is in favor of the most stringent environmental controls possible in the Master Plan, but added:

"It's clear you do not have to spend a half million dollars to add more studies on trigger mechanisms in an environmental impact report before you certify it."

CERTIFICATION of the environmental impact report will enable the board of supervisors and county planning staff to proceed

RUSTIC ATMOSPHERE of Carmel Valley is typified by this horse on property above Carmel Valley Village. Environmental effects with revision of the 1980 Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Once the Master Plan is re-adopted, a court-ordered moratorium on discretionary development in Carmel Valley will be dissolved.

"I'm not opposed to the notion to have mechanisms in the (Carmel Valley) plan that tell us when to stop (development)," Supervisor Peters said. "When you talk about trigger mechanisms, it depends on what you're talking about."

"We have controls already. Water meters are one of those controls; when you reach a certain level of development, the number of water meters stops. I'm not interested in controls that are not scientific, however. I'm for the highest air pollution control standards we could possibly have."

Fourth District Supervisor Michal Moore indicated his opposition to the proposed trigger mechanisms at an earlier EIR hearing; he characterized them as tools of environmental extremists who wish to "sabotage" the planning process.

First District Supervisor Marc Del Piero said he sees "no problems with the EIR as it is."

"The EIR is a good document," Del Piero told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "You will see a wholesale re-drawing of the (Carmel Valley Master) Plan adopted two years ago. The environmental constraints indicate substantially less development than allowed in that plan."

"Trigger mechanisms pose a very, very difficult process to implement. If it's possible to determine the number of (housing) units that would be allowed before those environmental effects are felt, then they should be in the plan itself."

"I would prefer to go to larger lot zoning than to smaller lot zoning and face lawsuits from property owners who can't develop because of triggers. Most people seem to anticipate that the Master Plan as adopted by the board of supervisors will be readopted."

"I don't think that is the case. Compromises will have to be made in the Master Plan based on environmental constraints."

Third District Supervisor Dusan Petrovic indicated he would like to see more information and discussion about the proposed trigger mechanisms before the EIR is certified.

"I don't know how much it would cost to evaluate them further," the King City supervisor said. "I'm not sure they wouldn't work. The only question is whether they would cost too much. I'm sure the idea is worth exploring."

"We will have to hear more about what can be done and whether they can be simplified. But I don't think I would vote for certification without more in the trigger mechanisms."

Second District Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck said she needs to study the EIR more carefully before she decides whether further investigation of the trigger mechanisms should be required.

The hearing May 11 will be held in supervisors' chambers in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Biologists farm marine life in a local laboratory

Annual open house scheduled May 1

Story and photographs
By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

HOW MANY times have delicacies such as abalone, clams and crab given way to chicken or ground round because of the hefty menu price?

That $15 dinner is a result of the old supply and demand law — there are just not enough abalones, clams or crab to satisfy the palates of the world's connoisseurs.

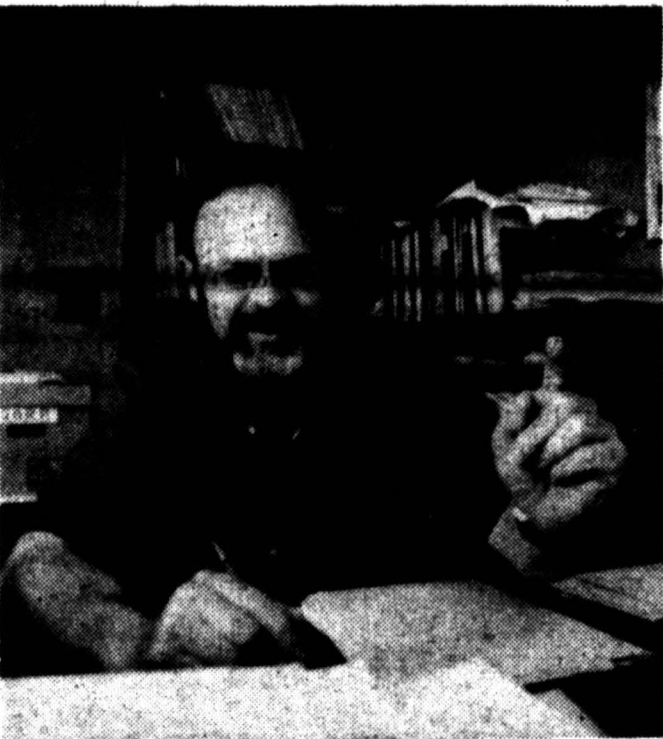

But seafood lovers have unusual allies in a group of biologists who study marine life at a state-operated laboratory on the rugged coast nine miles south of Carmel.

The California Department of Fish and Game Marine Biology Laboratory will open its doors from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday, May 1 for its annual free open house.

Director and Senior Marine Biologist Earl Ebert said displays will exhibit the work done with abalone, Pismo clams and Dungeness crabs. Biologists from separate projects on sea otters and fisheries will also bring exhibits for the open house.

The neighboring Marine Pollution Laboratory, where the effects pollutants have on mussels is under study, will also be open to the public.

The Marine Biology Laboratory was constructed nearly two decades ago by the Department of the Navy for use as a missile tracking system facility. However, that plan never materialized and the facility was leased to the state for $1 per year in 1970, Ebert said.

DIRECTOR EARL EBERT believes that farming the sea will lead to an increased world food supply.

"We've been looking at the feasibility of managing cultivation for the purpose of looking toward reseeding in the ocean," said Ebert. "The bottom line is mariculture — the farming of the sea."

The project is called "shellfish culture investigation" and encompasses efforts to grow red and pink abalone, Dungeness crabs and Pismo clams in a laboratory environment and then release the animals to their natural habitat.

Ebert explained that man has continued to fish for many years, but some marine life cannot naturally replenish its populations as fast as they are caught.

"You can't continue to keep taking things out of the ocean without putting something back," Ebert said.

Ebert does not believe farming the ocean would cause irreparable environmental damage, as some conservationists claim.

"Farming is not hazardous to the environment," he said. "I think we are, in some ways, helping by replenishing species."

But large-scale farming of marine life is well into the future, Ebert believes.

"I think, once we are able to grow the species in a controlled environment, we could set areas aside just for farming. I hope we can," he said.

If marine life can be farmed, it would mean greater productivity at less cost. Ships would no longer have to troll for long periods of time — the fish would be in a specific spot at a specific time — similar to raising cattle, he said.

Ebert said "the species under study may be delicacies, but all three need population enhancement."

"These are not the kind of shell fish that will feed the masses. We're looking at enhancing fisheries that are in trouble," he said. "We know if we can enhance the fisheries, the market is there."

Abalone, which encompasses the bulk of the biologists' study, is expensive — restaurants pay fisheries about $1.25 for each fish.

Asked if results from the studies would lower prices, Ebert said: "We hope so. Abalone has gone off the board. It's all because the demand is so high and the supply is just not there."

THE CARMEL-area laboratory is one of several where biologists study the feasibility of farming the ocean. The work is in conjunction with the Scripps Institute of Oceanography abalone enhancement program.

The intensity of their study is indicated by the 30,000 abalone at the lab, ranging in size from larvae to adult.

"With the abalone, the technique is pretty well advanced now," said Ebert. "We can grow them in large numbers. There are still mortality problems in their earlier stages."

However, size too is a problem. In the lab environment, the abalone grow slowly and it is expensive to feed them," he said.

Biologist Jim Houk studies the feeding habits of the abalone, which are fed single-celled algae called "diatoms" until they are old enough to digest larger kelp.

Houk wants to develop a strain of diatom that would induce faster growth in the abalone. Factors that must be studied include nutrition, time of feeding, and how much food is needed to grow the abalone.

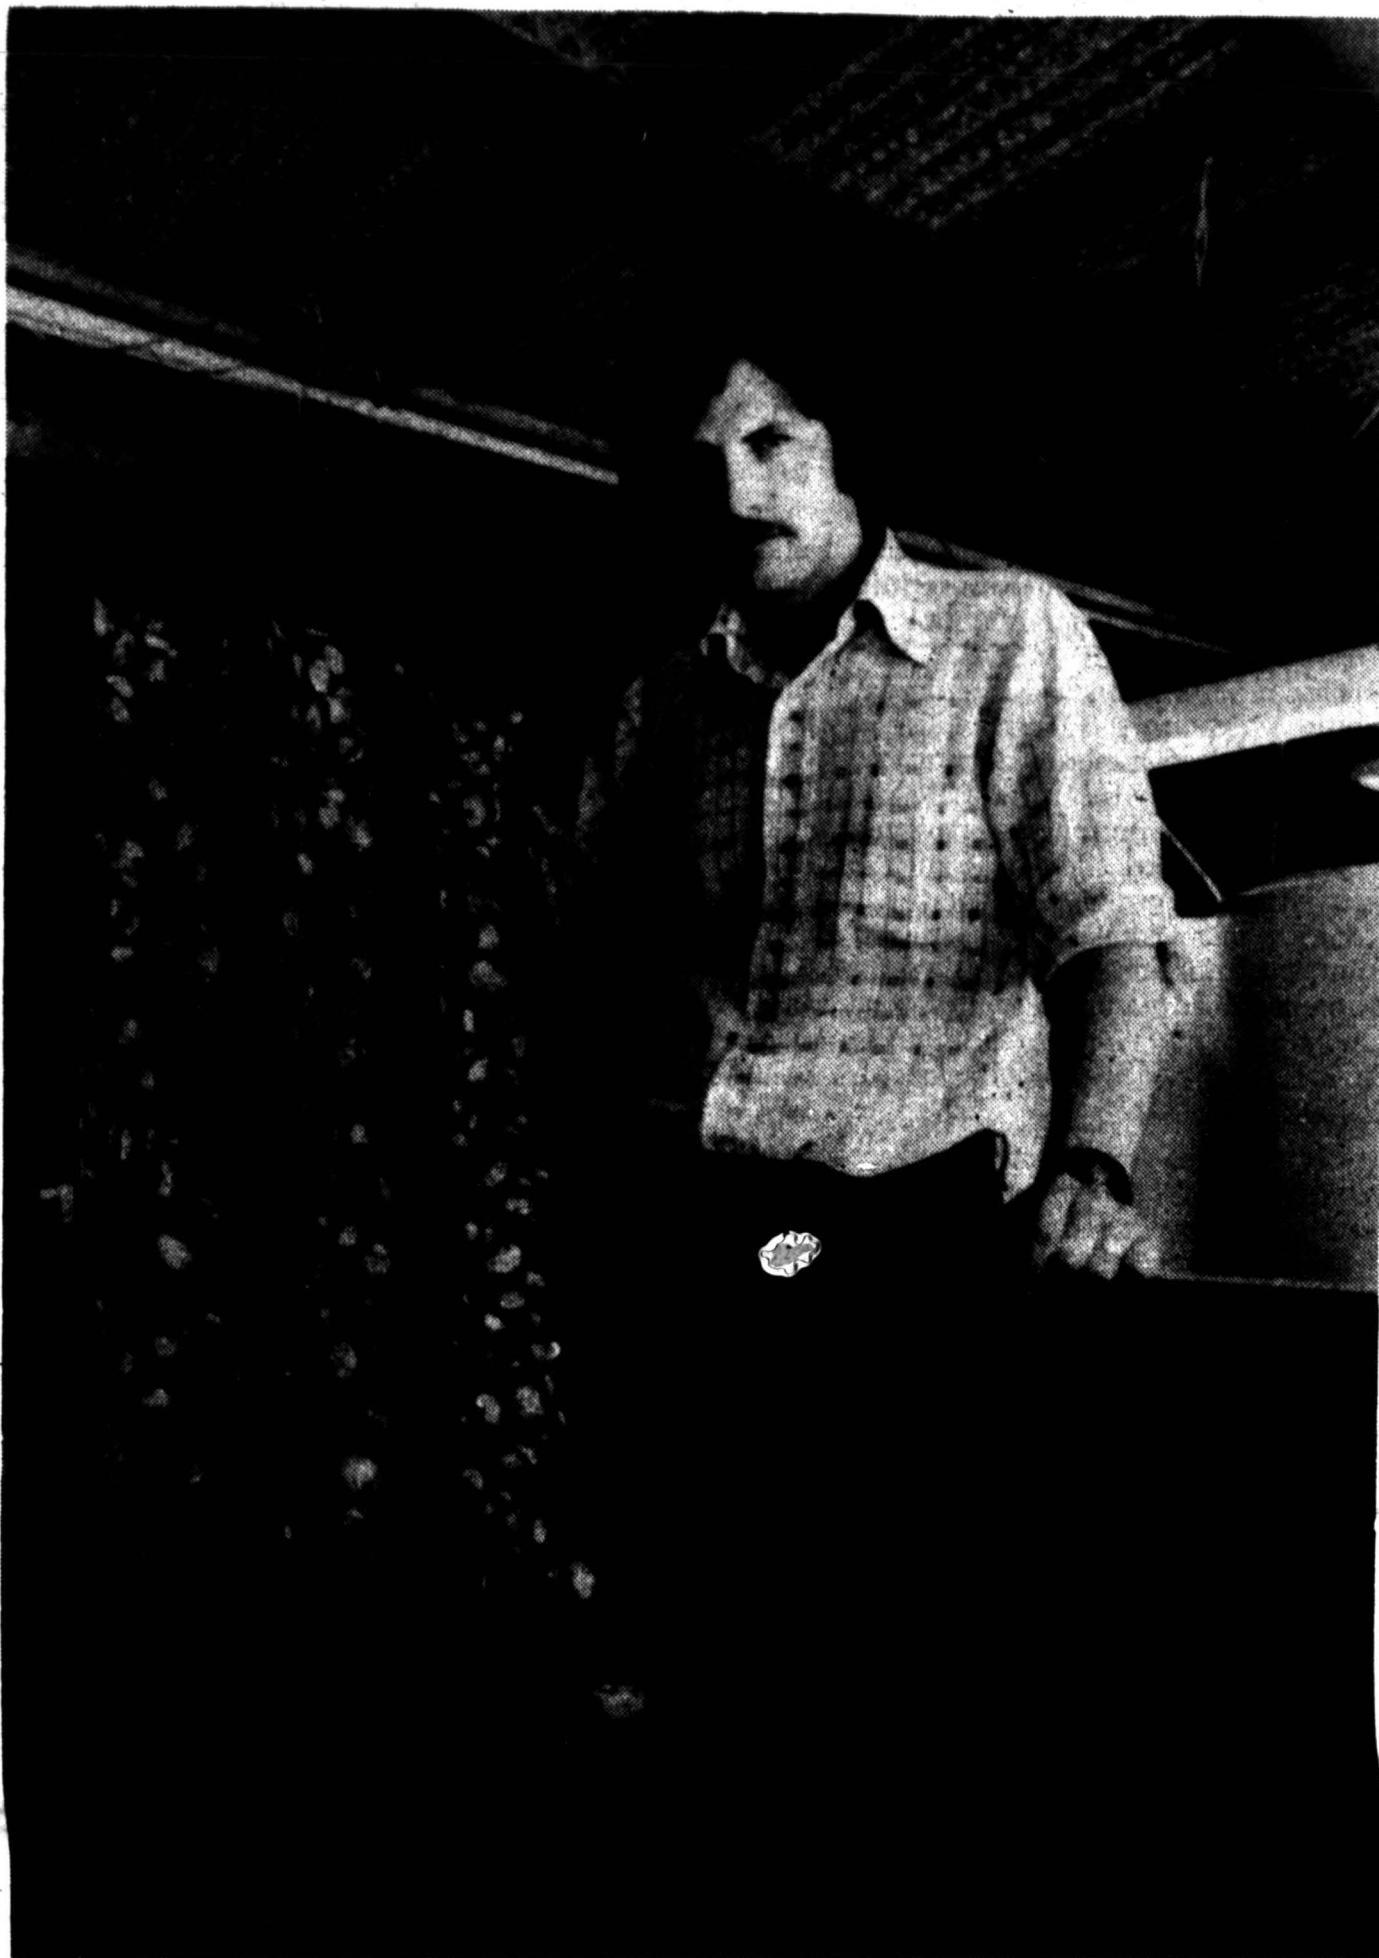

One problem is how to grow diatoms at a fast enough rate. "A one-inch abalone will easily consume six to eight million diatoms a day," Houk said.

Sea water loses some of its nutrients in certain cycles over the course of a year, which means the diatoms fed to the algae are not as nutritious during those time periods.

"Maybe it means we need to just farm abalone for certain months, shut down and farm something else," said Houk.

BIOLOGIST Art Haseltine has had some measure of success in his work with Pismo clams.

Haseltine said it is a three-step process to

RESEARCH ASSISTANT Randy Hamilton must measure and count hundreds of abalone as they mature.

grow the clams for eventual return to the natural habitat.

Initially, the problem was how to get them to spawn in the laboratory.

That obstacle was overcome but the clams would then die in the metamorphosis from larvae to juvenile clam.

"Farming is not hazardous to the environment," he said. "I think we are, in some ways, helping by replenishing species."

The sand in which the clams bury themselves is a key factor, said Haseltine, who kept one clam alive for nearly two and one-half years.

"Now we're faced with how to keep the post-larvae juvenile clams alive and put them out," he said. "I think the sand has bacteria. We need to find a way to keep the sand sterile."

Although he has managed to keep the clams alive, Haseltine said, they do not grow as fast as if they were born in their natural habitat.

Haseltine hopes to place several thousand laboratory-spawned juvenile clams out in the sand along a Northern California beach in the summer of 1983 to see if they can live in a natural environment.

If he is successful, Haseltine said it would be a major breakthrough toward "population enhancement" for Pismo clams.

However, like just about every other tax-supported institution, the Marine Biology Laboratory faces an uncertain financial future.

"Most of the funding for the $150,000 annual budget comes from the Federal Bartlett Bill Act for Commercial Fisheries, Research and Development," said Ebert.

But, monies from that bill will expire June 30 and the Reagan Administration has indicated that the federal government will no longer provide financial support for such state projects.

Ebert said he believes the project cost will be absorbed into the State Department of Fish and Game budget.

Ebert believes a special tax on abalone fishermen would be strongly opposed.

"People are already paying a special fee to fish in the oceans," he said. "if you start adding special taxes, you will meet opposition."

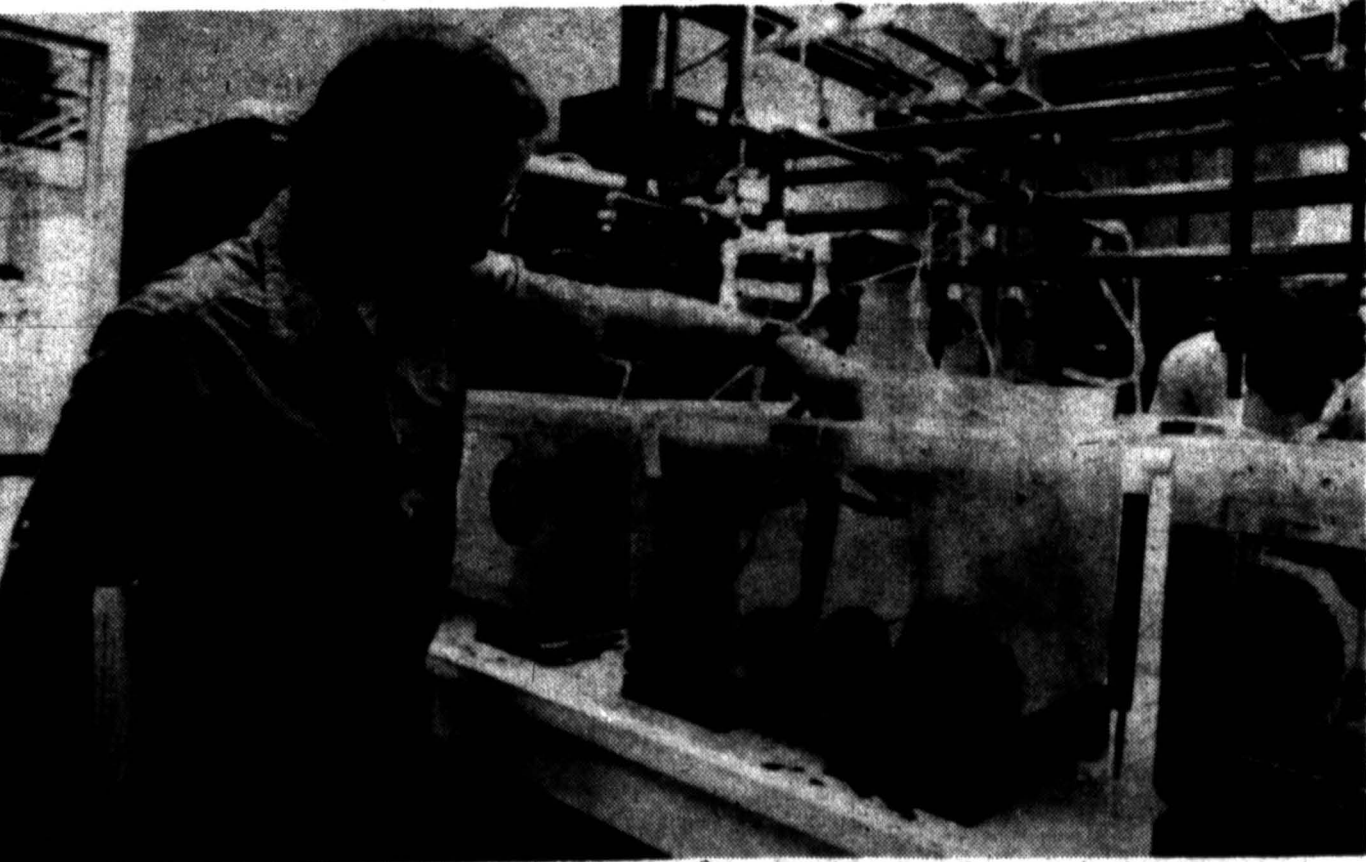

The fish and game department has special "stamps" for trout and striped bass fishing licenses. Some of those monies are used for management and cultivation programs that will help recreational fisheries.

WHERE'S THE LAB?

To get to the Marine Biology Laboratory, take Highway 1 south for nine miles (from the Ocean Avenue intersection). The lab is on the ocean side and there is a fence that surrounds the property. Enter through a gate marked "U.S. Government property."

THE GROWTH of the laboratory-grown abalone is constantly measured and analyzed.

Planners consider proposal to limit new business

THE CARMEL Planning Commission was expected to act on two controversial issues last night (April 28), which were left in limbo after its April 21 session.

The commission was expected to schedule a study session on a proposal by Commissioner John Logan that asks the city to explore the possibility of limiting new business in Carmel.

Acting Chairman Sandy Swain said she would present possible dates for the study session when the commission met last night.

In another issue, the commission wants to review the use permit for a proposed Italian restaurant on Ocean Avenue before it approves the project design.

The commission, acting as the board of adjustments, was expected to hold a public hearing on the use permit for Giorgio's last night.

Giorgio's restaurant would replace Dock Lor's Chinese Canton restaurant on the south side of Ocean between San Carlos and Mission.

The controversy centers on whether Dock Lor, owner of the Chinese restaurant, will retire.

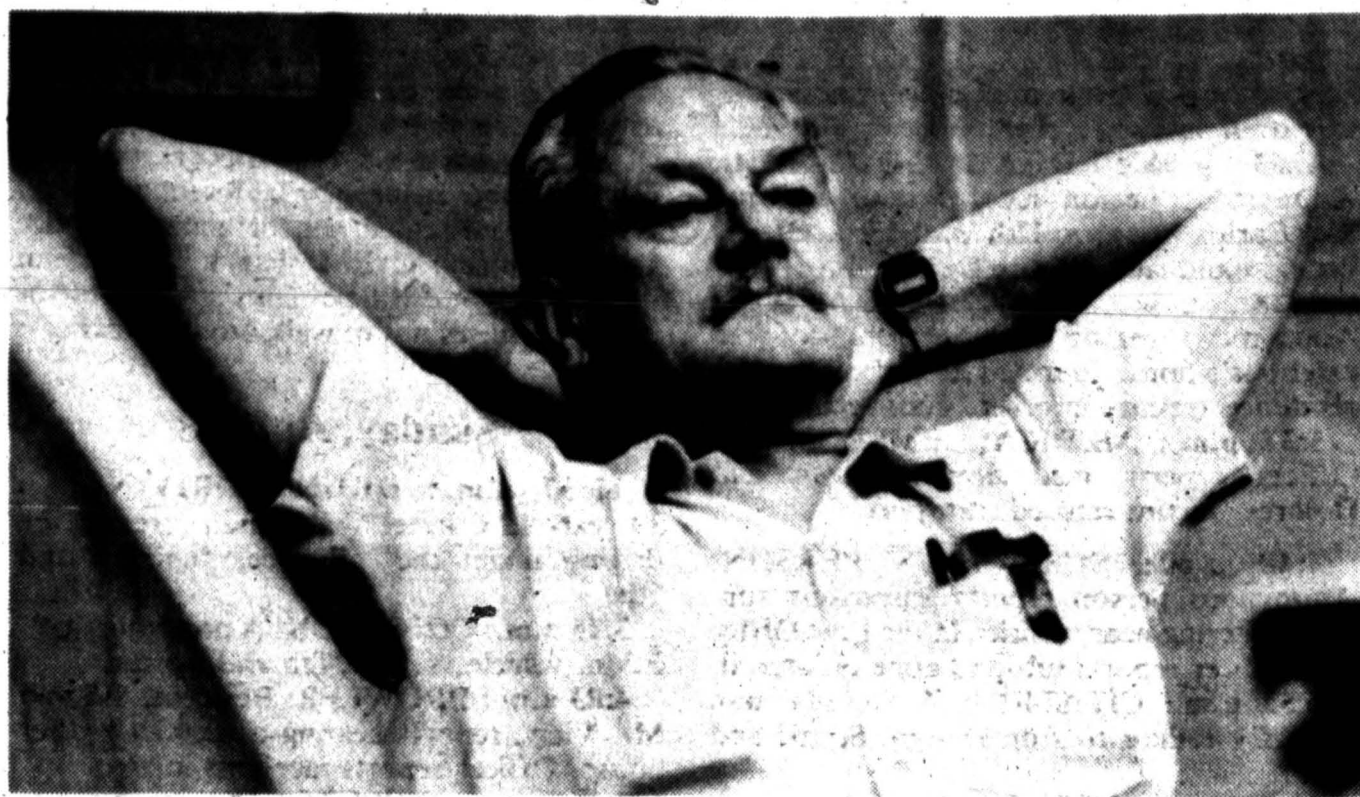

Dick Bruhn, who is the lease holder on the building, said Lor has indicated he would retire.

However, Monterey Attorney Douglas Berry said Lor does not have plans to retire.

"Dock has no present intentions to retire and no present intentions to vacate the premises," Berry told the commission.

At first, commissioners were at a loss about what to do because they were uncertain whether they could legally approve an application for design work that would be done on a site that is rented to another business, which does not want to move.

But City Atty. George Brehmer interjected and said that it was not the business of the commission to be involved in the landlord-tenant relationship. He said the commission could legally act on the application.

Bruhn said he did not want to "kick Lor out" but added that he wanted to insure that a tenant could move in almost immediately if Lor does retire.

"He did say he wanted to retire two years ago and he did say he wanted to retire in February," Bruhn said.

Lor is on a month-to-month lease, but Bruhn said he may be forced to give notice so that the application for Giorgio's could be approved smoothly.

"I hate to do that, but I think it's coming up," he said.

GEORGE BROOK-KOTHLAW, one of the applicants, said Giorgio's would be open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily.

the restaurant would serve a continental or light breakfast with brioche, croissants, fresh fruit and eggs.

Other foods that would be offered include pizza, salmon, roast chicken, turkey, ham and tuna — all prepared Italian-style.

Giorgio's would also offer a variety of Italian ice cream, beer, drinks and desserts, Brook-Kothlow said.

The proposed study session on limiting business will probably be held in May or June, said Swain.

Logan, at first, asked the commission to recommend that the General Plan Advisory Committee explore the possibility of limits on business, but joined with fellow Commissioner John Wright on the study session proposal.

"Right now all we have to go on is our own intuition and subjective feelings," said Logan, who proposed that staff prepare a report on the trend of business in Carmel.

That report which would entail a complete review of the city business licenses, would take about two days, said Griggs.

In this original proposal, Logan said: "Our residential character is being swamped by tourist-oriented businesses or by other types of businesses that exist in amazing multiplicity. Have we had enough? Is it time to proclaim Stop! Stop!?"

The commission also postponed action on a proposed ordinance that would ban earth satellite receiving stations that are more than 10 feet in diameter.

The proposed ordinance had been sent back to the land use committee for further clarification in March. Griggs said the details still need work.

During the meeting, Swain served as acting chairwoman. She replaced former chairman Bob Stephenson, who was elected to the city council.

The commission will elect a new chairman and seat new members May 26. The council must appoint a replacement for Stephenson and the positions held by James Wright and Arthur Mertens are up for appointment. Mertens and Wright said they would serve again if appointed.

General Plan Committee likes city hall right where it is

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL CITY HALL and the post office will stay right where they are if the General Plan Advisory Committee has its way.

Committee members agreed April 23 that the revised general plan should stipulate that the city make all possible efforts to keep the post office on Fifth Avenue between Dolores Street and San Carlos Street, and leave city hall on the east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean Avenue and Seventh Avenue.

Earth Metrics, the general plan consultant, recommended in a draft element for public facilities that Carmel should move city hall to the proposed second story of the public works building on Junipero or build a new facility at the present location.

The proposal met with strong resistance from the committee members.

"I personally happen to favor keeping this city hall. It's part of the character of our community," said Gene Hammond.

Hammond said the city could do several things with the proposed second story on the public works building, including construction of a parking facility.

"But we can't do anything because the general plan says we have to put the city hall there," Hammond said.

Alan Williams argued that there is "plenty of room at city hall, just not enough people to do the work."

"This building can handle 50 percent expansion of city staff and with help from computers could handle more workload," said Williams. "The restraint on the city is not enough building space, but supplying the people to do the work."

Don Davidson said Carmel should not keep a city hall "just because it is cute" but because it is large enough for the administrative staff.

Davidson said modifications could be made to the building that would provide more work space. "The population has not changed so much as the bureaucracy has grown," he said.

Kay Ranson, vice president of Earth Metrics, said the city should "address its space needs" before a decision is made on whether to expand or move city hall.

Ms. Ranson agreed that the wording of the draft element should be changed so that the general plan does not force the city into doing something it may not want to.

THE COMMITTEE also briefly discussed the possible relocation of the post office. Members supported keeping the facility at its present location, or if it is not possible, at least keeping it in the downtown commercial district area.

Davidson was a vocal supporter of ensuring that the post office remain on Fifth Avenue.

"The post office is part of Carmel's culture. It is essentially part of the community," he said. "It is probably the last definitive, unusual thing about the village."

Questions have been raised whether the post office lease will be renewed in 1987. However, the committee said in an earlier session that the issue will probably be resolved within the year and Hammond called the question a "red herring that needn't be discussed at this time."

The committee also explored whether to add a "socio-cultural" element to the general plan instead of including those issues under public facilities.

The new element has been proposed by Chairwoman Jane Mayer, who said Carmel needs to address specifically its cultural future instead of "lumping" it under public facilities.

A final decision on what will be included in the public facilities element was not reached. Earth Metrics was asked to rewrite its draft element and make a recommendation about where culture and public facilities should be included in the revised general plan.

In their discussion of a draft significant building element, committee members indicated they would like to see such a listing used primarily to allow non-conforming "noteworthy" structures to be reconstructed in their original design if the building were damaged.

The committee said owners could make application to the city for a special status, but would have to provide plans at the time to the planning commission.

If "noteworthy" status were granted, a building could be rebuilt to its original state so the owner wouldn't have to comply with current zoning laws.

Members indicated they do not want the city to develop a list of significant buildings because they do not want to see "tourist buses cruising through the residential streets," said Hammond.

"I feel the residential people are entitled to their privacy," said Dottie Lillard.

Northern California Savings president says he's 'optimistic' about merger with Great Western

By FLORENCE MASON

FIRMIN GRYP, president of Northern California Savings, describes NCS as "a strong company looking forward with some optimism to a different kind of business."

He made the statement despite the fact that this year and the last are the only "bad" years in his long experience with the firm. His observation also came on the heels of the news that Fidelity Savings of San Francisco had been taken over by the federal government, an event that shook the financial world and savings and loan customers.

When he spoke of "a different kind of business," Gryp meant not only the effects of recent changes in government regulations but also the company's merger with Great Western Savings, to be completed by June 30.

Merger of the two strong companies would have two major effects: "Extra and improved liquidity for our shareholders" and "an enhancement of our ability to compete head-on with whoever's out there," Gryp said, in an interview with the Pine Cone/Outlook in the bank's Carmel office.

Northern California Savings — which has branches in Carmel and Carmel Valley — could not by itself provide enough stock trading ("float") and the merger with Great Western, already a larger company, would create an even bigger company, he said. "That will lead to better prices; customers can buy and sell when they want to."

The ability to compete is increasingly important, Gryp explained, "when you look at the future realistically, especially in terms of deregulation still to come. Putting our two strong companies together will mean 180 offices, $12.5 billion in assets and about $700 million in capital."

His reference to deregulation was to what has been called "the most sweeping piece of financial legislation in U.S. history," the Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act, passed by Congress in March of 1980.

The act provides for the gradual elimination of control on prices (interest rates) in the banking industry and it gives traditional mortgage lenders new powers, including limited powers to lend to business. All interest rate ceilings are scheduled to terminate no later than 1986.

Deregulation for financial institutions followed deregulation in most transportation and energy institutions and was seen at the time as a guarantee of "a ferociously competitive environment," the ultimate effect of the act and the anticipated lifting of geographic and other constraints was expected to pave the way for "legitimate national banking." (The quotations are from an article in the November 17, 1980 issue of Business Week magazine.)

Gryp described savings and loan associations' traditional role as that of taking savings deposits and giving out long-term fixed rate home loans. The future looks very different to him because of deregulation, flexible mortgages and the coming merger.

"We'll have our own money market funds. We'll be able to buy in international money markets, to employ capital more efficiently, such as in variable rate mortgages. We'll be more involved in development and construction. We'll always be there for the savings customer; these things will be additional," Gryp said.

THERE WAS a hint of frustration in Gryp's statement: "It's quite exciting to look to the future — if the future ever gets here.

We need stability in the financial world."

Once source of his frustration may be the length of time it takes savings and loan associations to effect the changes that are possible now and still to come. In April, 1981, for example, the Federal Home Loan Bank voted to eliminate virtually all restrictions on how much payments or payment schedules can vary on new mortgages.

FIRMIN GRYP (standing), president of Northern California Savings, and Carmel branch manager Harley Warner look ahead with optimism. Gryp believes that government deregulation and the company's coming merger with Great Western justify that optimism.

do not face increased tax burdens. Realizing that such a proposal would require a good deal of thought and consideration, Panetta has said "it would be important to begin moving in 1982 in the direction of simplification."

Gryp says Northern California Savings will weather the storm because it has been extremely successful for so many years. "In my 31 years with the company, there have been only two bad years — this one, and the last. We were prepared for it by previous successes."

In 1979, the firm's net earnings were $17,012,000. The figure for 1980 was $3,609,000. In 1981, Northern California Savings had a net loss of $15,408,000.

Gryp admitted that the problems hurt his pride. "Savings and loan companies have been said to be asleep. But we didn't have any choice; it's been very much a regulated business." Soberly, he said: "Bad times are not fun times. It's a neat thing to do (helping people get homes)."

Looking toward the time when it will again be possible to do that "neat" thing, Gryp said that his best guess about the time when the merger with Great Western will be consummated is June 30. When that does happen, he will become one of four division presidents in the new organization. He will continue to work in Salinas but acknowledges that he'll be spending more time at Great Western headquarters in Los Angeles.

WHAT WILL be the local effect of this merger, combined with the new climate for financial institutions?

"We'll be able to pick up new products, without regulation. We should be able to compete with banks and other financial intermediaries. We'll be able to offer and market those new products more quickly and more efficiently (money market funds, for example). We'll have the strength to pay the highest rate that's out there. And we'll have the best tools, the best electronic systems."

Gryp acknowledged that with added size, it will become even more difficult to stay personal, to maintain loyalties. He experienced that earlier with the growth of NCS, which itself was the result of a merger of two smaller companies. At that time (1969) NCS had $350 million in assets and 11 branches. Now it has $2 billion in assets and 63 branches. The growth was gradual, and he said his goal was always "to give the public what it needs — to be professional, but with warmth."

Firmin Gryp grew up in Monterey and attended Walter Colton School, Monterey High School and Hartnell College in Salinas. He went to work "for the summer" as a bookkeeper in a lumber company owned by L. Michael Tynan. Tynan invited him to try the savings and loan field in his then-small company with one office and $3 million in assets.

"It was lots of fun being part of the growth. Tynan had foresight and understanding and helped us all grow," Gryp said.

In 1969, the company (Salinas Valley Savings and Loan) merged with Palo Alto Savings. Gryp, who had been executive vice president of the Salinas company, became president of the newly-formed firm and his association with Tynan, now chairman of the board of NCS, continued.

He has been active in community and professional organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, the Rodeo Association, and Rotary (past-president). He is past president of the California Savings and Loan League and has been on the legislative committees for both the state and the U.S. leagues.

Gryp is married and he and his wife, Jan, have three grown daughters who live in Newport Beach, Palo Alto and San Francisco. One of the other delights of his life is the small house the Gryps built on Carmel Point, where he spends as much time as possible. A frequent companion for walks on the beach and in the country is Kelly, a golden retriever. "A little tennis, lots of reading, gardening when I can."

As for his unusual name: his father was born in Belgium and it was his name too. But his mother's family brings a Spanish heritage and there is a Point Firmin in Southern California; that has always intrigued him. He is proud of the fact that he was the fifth generation born in Monterey. He is proud, too, of the growth of his company during the past 31 years.

At that time an article in Business Week (4/11/81) suggested that it would take savings and loans some time to decide which types of mortgages to settle on. "The new variable mortgages cannot halt the savings or earnings bloodletting, soon," a savings and loan executive said. "But this is the instrument that over time will make this industry viable. We're no longer in a straitjacket."

Firmin Gryp echoes that feeling. He believes there will also have to be a compromise between Congress and the administration for a reduction of the national budgetary deficit. "But people in the market will have to be shown. It will happen when both parties realize it is vital."

Gryp has been in frequent communication with Congressman Leon Panetta, a member of the House budget committee who, Gryp says, is working toward a balanced budget. "All the items in the budget are important but so is financial stability. Housing and autos are in depression, not recession. It is high rates that keep them from competing. The country needs the lower rates; that's why I think it will happen," Gryp said.

He also likes Panetta's tax simplification plan, which would require all taxpayers to pay the same flat percentage of their income, with a substantial personal exemption to ensure that low and middle-income Americans

CHS valedictorian says students split over draft

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE VALEDICTORIAN of the Carmel High School class of 1982 plans to register for the draft when he turns 18 in June although he thinks the United States may be headed for war.

John Le Neve of Carmel describes himself as "fairly nationalistic" and a supporter of Ronald Reagan, although he admits that many of his classmates don't share his political views.

"Most of them are scared; they don't want to register for the draft. A couple I know of have registered but they don't like the idea of being drafted. I haven't heard of anyone who is refusing to register."

Le Neve will graduate at the top of his class with a 3.97 grade point average, and plans to attend either Harvard University or the University of California, Santa Cruz.

Registration for the draft is a topic which occupies considerable attention in the minds of the senior class, right up there with graduation and college matriculation, Le Neve said.

"I will register for the draft," Le Neve said. "I'm against nuclear rearmament but in favor of conventional weapons. The country has to be protected; the Monroe Doctrine should be supported."

With the well-publicized increases in the defense budget of the Reagan administration and a tense global political climate, many Carmel High School seniors are worried about draft registration, Le Neve said.

"We've had a couple of discussions about it in class and at lunch," Le Neve said. "A lot of people at school are fairly religious and don't believe in going to war."

"Most of them are scared; they don't want to register for the draft. A couple I know of have registered but they don't like the idea of being drafted. I haven't heard of anyone who is refusing to register."

"I think we're probably gearing up for a war, but it's probably defensive. I don't see most of the students making any big demonstrations like they did in the 60s. I can't see many of us instigating them."

Le Neve said his parents — one Democrat and the other Republican — are "pretty neutral" politically. The top senior student said he would have voted for independent John Anderson in the 1980 presidential election, although he supports Ronald Reagan.

"I would have voted for Anderson, but I would have voted for Reagan over Carter," Le Neve said. "I would vote for Reagan now; I don't see anybody better. I support Reagan's economic policies and his foreign policies."

Le Neve believes that if the United States is gearing up for warfare, it is a defensive — rather than offensive — strategy.

"Russia keeps aggressing and unless we stop them somewhere, they won't stop taking over other nations," he said. "We should have sent some aid to the Falkland Islands."

"I DON'T KNOW about aid to El Salvador. But Britain is an ally; we can't ex- pect them to support us unless we support them."

Parallels have been drawn between the attitudes of students in the 1950s and those of students today, but Le Neve doesn't agree with that analysis.

"I don't see a re-birth of McCarthyism today," Le Neve said. "A person like that is really looked down on today. A vocal minority can often become the majority, because I don't trust the news media to give both sides.

"I would say that the major concern right now for seniors at Carmel High is getting into colleges and getting housing."

Le Neve said graduation ceremonies this year may not include the traditional address by the valedictorian, but may instead feature a speech contest.

He was one of 14 members of the Padres football squad ("almost the entire first string") who quit just before the game with Gonzales High School midway through the season this year.

"The coach had the team's support at the beginning of the year, but not at the end," Le Neve said. "He never played the second string, and when we quit, they didn't know the plays."

The Padres completed another winless season despite initial high hopes that Coach Dick Molen could build the team into a winning squad.

"Last year, we lost all our games but we had fun playing," Le Neve said. "This year we just had so many stupid mistakes."

Le Neve also wrestled on the Padres team for one year, and in his spare time he enjoys scuba diving. He candidly admits that "a lot of students don't feel the same way" he does about political matters.

"But there isn't anybody I know who won't register for the draft. They're going to get you either way."

Privacy, free speech clash in handbill ordinance

By ROBERT MISKIMON

CARMELITES' well-known love of privacy has collided once again with the First Amendment, and the Constitution has won the first round.

The Carmel City Council introduced on first reading April 20 an amendment to the city ordinance which regulates distribution of handbills on private property.

The handbill ordinance passed by the council in 1979 is "overly broad" and presents constitutional problems related to freedom of speech guarantees under the First Amendment, City Atty. George Brehmer informed the council.

That ordinance flatly prohibits distribution of handbills — a term which also includes circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and newspapers — on private property where the occupant doesn't want the literature.

Brehmer suggested that the ordinance be amended to prohibit the distribution of literature on private property only when the resident or occupant has placed a "No Handbills" sign on the premises.

"The proposed (amendment) brings present (restrictions) into compliance with existing case law by allowing distribution of handbills in cases where the owner, occupant or tenant does not voice an objection," Brehmer advised in a memo to the council.

"This is consistent with the constitutional right of free speech."

The current ordinance makes it illegal "for any person, either directly or indirectly, to distribute, deposit, place, throw, scatter or cast any handbill in or upon any private yard, grounds, walk, porch, steps, mailbox, vestibule, house, residence, building or any other private property after the person has been informed by the owner, occupant, tenant, or other person having control of the private property that the handbill is not wanted."

The amendment would specify that a distributor of handbills had been notified that the literature is unwanted "if a sign is posted near the front or main entrance door or in any other place where such person would reasonably be expected to notice it, stating 'no handbills' or some other similar statement."

The amendment would also make it illegal to continue to deliver handbills where they are unwanted and accumulate, and would place an "affirmative obligation" on the distributor to remove accumulated handbills.

IF HANDBILLS are allowed to accumulate for more than two days, continued distribution would be an infraction of the law.

Planning Director Robert Griggs said the planning commission will attempt to define "what size restriction to specify as an allowed sign" under the handbill ordinance amendment.

"We will have to have something," Griggs said. "Probably something in the area of one square foot."

Oak moth larva feeding

By GREG D'AMBROSIO
Carmel City Forester

Homeowners and tree lovers, the oak moth larva is feeding now and will continue to feed on your oak trees for the next several weeks. If you don't mind the mess or the worms, then forget about spraying the little varmints. However, if you hate the fallout of if your trees have been denuded in the past, then consider spraying now to control these voracious insects. If your tree has been stripped of its leaves in the past, fertilize them to improve their vigor.

In the next several months, especially if the weather continues to be warm, keep a close watch on your pine trees. Bark beetles will begin showing up in ever increasing numbers from May through October. Over the next several weeks I'll provide readers with descriptions of these insect pests, how to recognize them and how to correct the problems these insects cause. If you have questions call 624-3543 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Carmel River channel modified by erosion

SCARRED riverbank on the south side of the Carmel River just upstream of the Schulte Road bridge is the result of the desperate battle by county public works crews and residents a few weeks ago to stop the river from washing out the roadway approach to the bridge. Tires, concrete blocks, river jacks, and landfill all were dumped over the rapidly-eroding riverbank. By the time the river had subsided, 30 feet of embankment had been eroded. Sedimentation in the river channel altered the natural course of the river.

ALTERED course of the Carmel River as a result of the recent heavy rainstorms is a testament to the destructive effects of sedimentation and erosion — processes which the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District hopes to control through a proposed river management program. The sandbar deposited in the center of the channel upstream of Schulte Road bridge forced the river from its normal path against the south bank, where erosion became severe.

A sunny opening day for CV Little League action

WHITNEY BAKER scored her first hit and first run on opening day of Carmel Valley Little League. Eight-year-old Whitney came right under the wire for age requirements to play — kids have to be eight by July 31 to play and, you guessed it, her birthday is July 31. Whitney is the daughter of Lynda and Steve Baker of Carmel Valley.

SOMETIMES it takes the skill of a "lion tamer" to coach a Little League team, laughs Dave Whipple, mentor of the Carmel Valley Texaco Lions.

COACHES for the Carmel Valley Little League teams gathered on opening day.

By MERRY NOLTE

Carmel Valley Little League's 25th anniversary year was inaugurated Saturday with a festive opening day ceremony. An overflow crowd of players, parents, and other supporters gathered under sunny skies to enjoy a full day of baseball.

League President Jim Shakal opened the ceremonies with greetings and thanks to the fans. Coaches, team mothers, league officers, and sponsors were recognized. An invocation prayer was offered by the Rev. Jim Brock of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church, followed by the national anthem, performed by the Carmel Valley Trio.

Congressman Leon Panetta addressed the crowd; he recalled the beginnings of Carmel Valley Little League 25 years ago and the 11 years his three sons have participated in the program. Congressman Panetta then threw out the first ball to his youngest son, Jim, who is the catcher for last year's league champion Wills Fargo Tigers.

To celebrate the League's birthday, a huge cake was served to the crowd. Decorated with 13 baseball caps representing each of the League's teams, the cake was baked by Jana Deck.

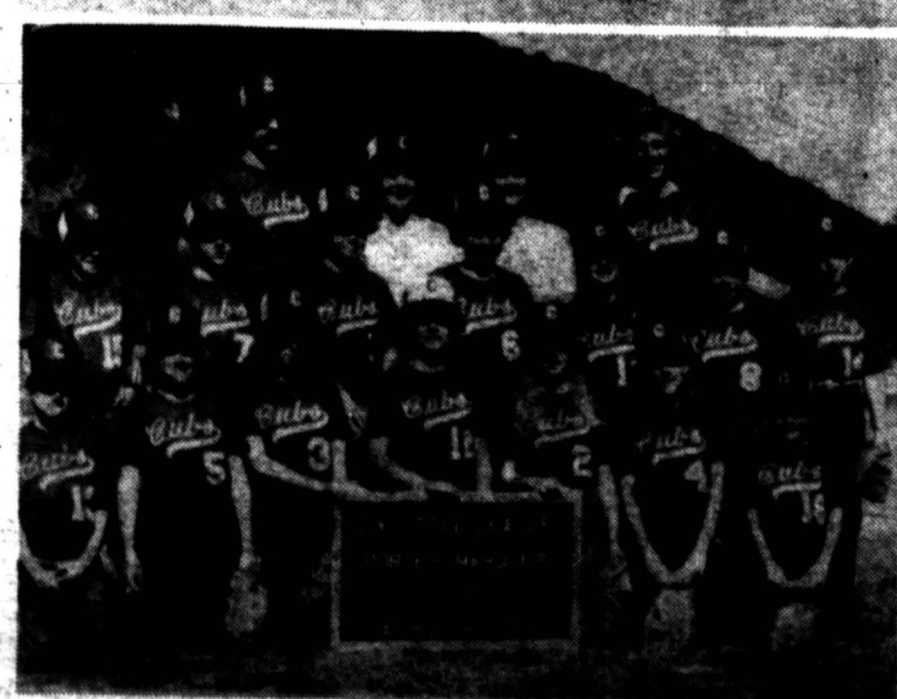

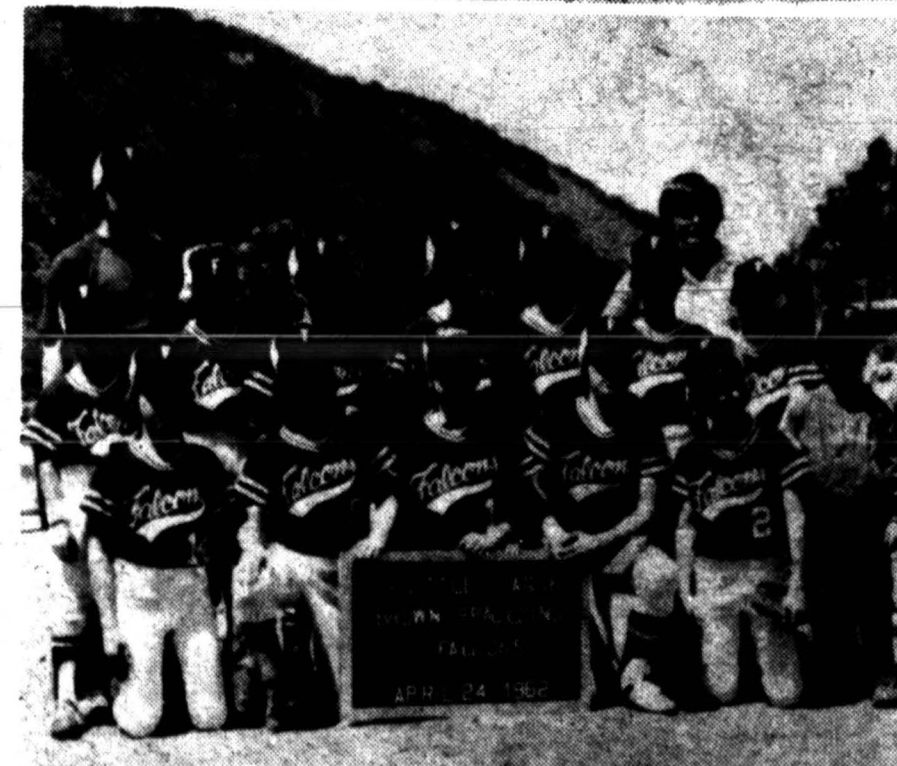

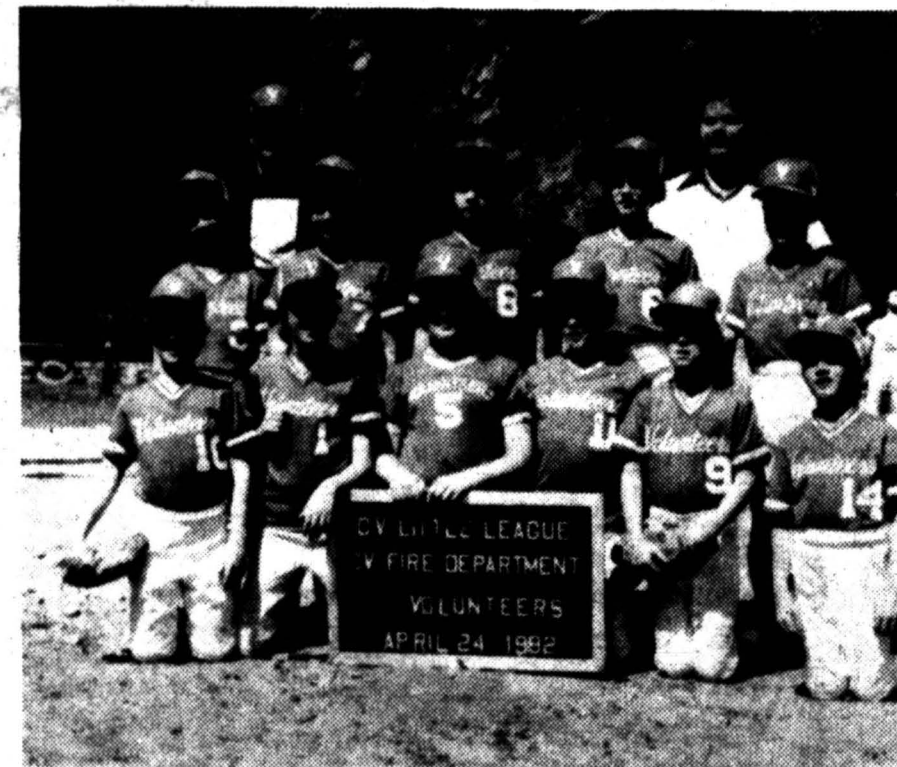

Minor league play began in the morning. The Valley Hardware Wolfpack defeated the Broken Bit Wolverines, 17-6. Ethan Tancredi hit a home run for the winning team. The Grapevine Deli Broncos rallied for 10 runs in the top of the third and final inning to beat the Porter-Marquard Cubs, 21 to 16.

After the noontime ceremonies, major league play began with the Tigers' victory over the Kiwanis Indians, 6-3. Mark Randazzo hit a home run for the Indians, bringing in all three of their runs. Other extra base hits included doubles by Dan Lind, Jim Panetta, and Derik Estes for the Tigers, and Scott Wiesner for the Indians. Tiger starting pitcher was Lind; Jim Courtney took over in the fourth inning. Jerry Kurz and Wiesner pitched for the Indians.

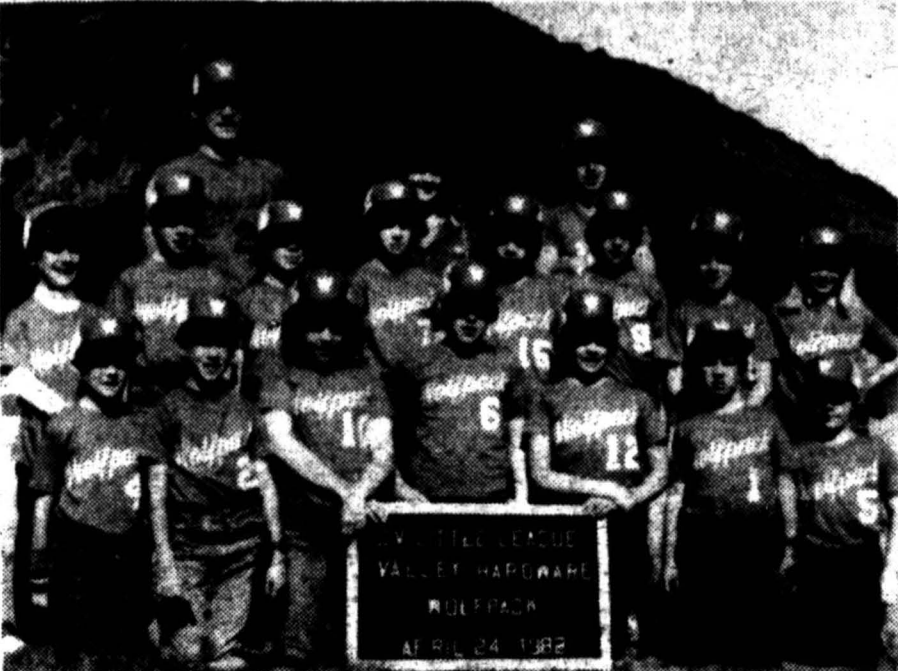

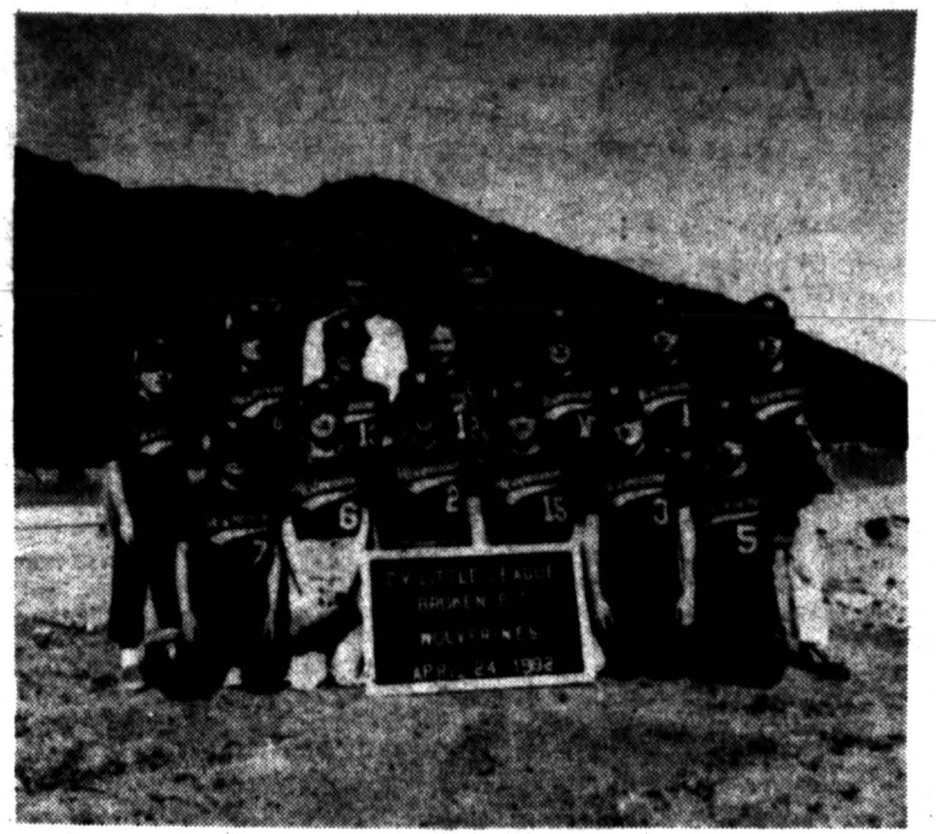

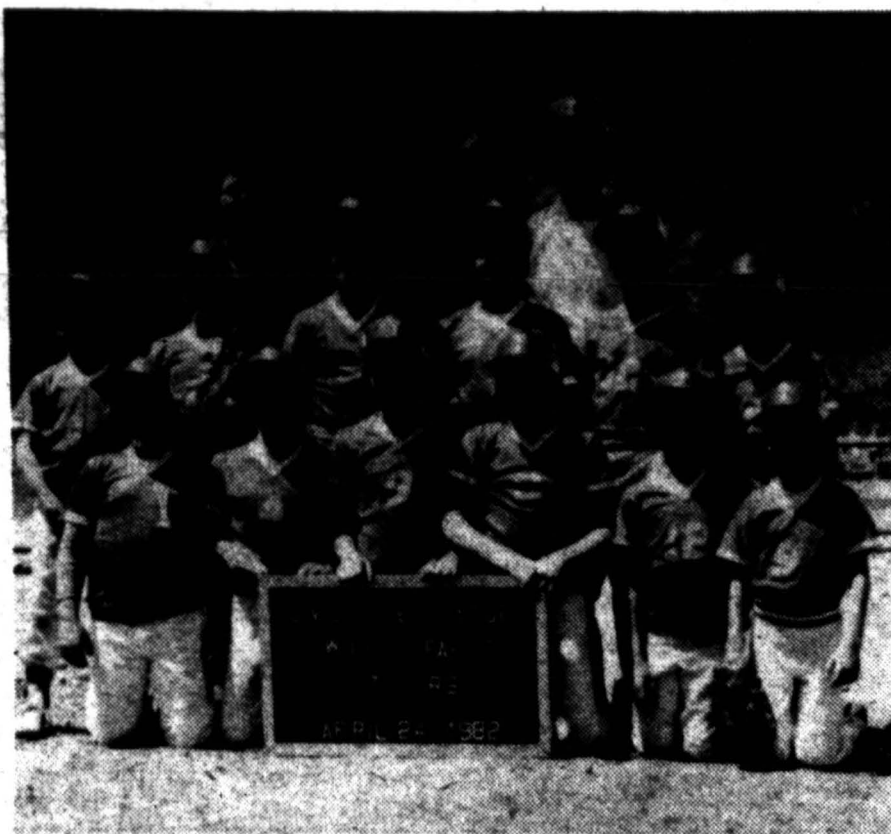

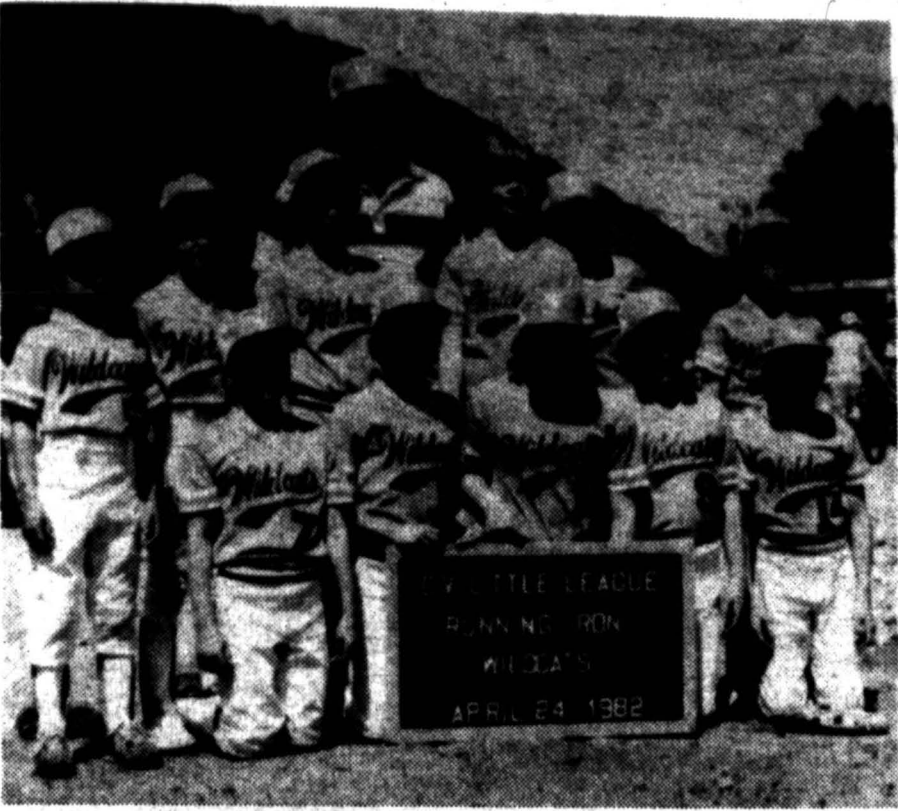

Fine pitching highlighted the Texaco Lions' win over the Brown-Spaulding Falcons, 17-1, in the final game of the day. David Elsberry started for the Lions and pitched three innings of no-hit ball. Simon Laguens relieved in the fourth and kept the no-hitter going until the sixth.

Leading hitter for the Lions was Mike Whipple, who was four for four, including a double and three runs batted-in. Laguens tripled for the game's only other extra base hit. Pitching for the Falcons were Kurt Harrison, Joey Suwada, and Lee Leidig.

Bat-A-Thon distance champion was Scott Wiesner, who belted the ball 210 feet. The Bat-A-Thon, a fundraiser, was held on the second field concurrently with the games.

By FLORENCE MASON

THE REVOLVING DOOR OF BUSINESS IN CARMEL

IT'S "OUT" for Burlwood Gallery. Without much fanfare, the gallery liquidated most of its merchandise several weeks ago and has left the Ocean Avenue premises.

The city of Carmel has several concerns about that move. One relates to several years of back taxes owed to the city by Burlwood Gallery. (The amount owed cannot be given without a court order, according to city hall secretary Karen Love.) City Atty. George Brehmer says Burlwood is involved in legal action in bankruptcy court. City taxes have priority over other claims, he said, and the city plans to submit a claim for those taxes as part of the bankruptcy proceeding.

The other concern of the city is the status of businesses which remain at the location, specifically whether a jewelry store, gold designer and possibly other businesses should have separate licenses. The Business License and Code Review Board has asked for detailed information on their status, and voted April 14 for a two-week continuance in the case.

Also in bankruptcy proceeding: Favela and Co., Ocean Avenue store that opened less than two years ago.

On a much happier note: the revolving door is "IN" for Greg Bean, a man who believes in the future of the service station and automobile repair business. He is the new owner of the Standard station at Junipero and Fourth.

Bean has taken over from Fred Hansen, who is retiring after many years in the business. The paperwork is done and Bean has been to the Chevron school — "a mini-course on how to run the business, personnel matters, how to treat customers."

Bean plans to continue the station much as it has been under Hansen's ownership, but with more emphasis on "the back room."

"I'll be using it a lot more for general repair work," he said. Chevron's master lease doesn't allow complete major overhauls, but that still leaves lots of room for other repair work.

Bean's optimism about his new venture stems from both facts and experience. The facts: "There are lots of cars out there. There has been a 33 percent increase in the number of cars in the U.S. and about 250,000 stations and repair shops have gone out of business." To the question, "And you still believe you can make it?" he replied with a cheerful and positive "You bet!"

Bean's experience covers 11 years with Harry Gien at his Mobil station and about seven years on his own, with a van. As the Moving Mechanic he went to the places where trouble occurred. In recent years he found that he couldn't keep up with the demand that way.

Greg Bean has lived on the Peninsula since 1964. He and his wife, Judy, live in Pebble Beach. The family home includes three children: Debbie, 16, a student at Monterey High; and Erin, 8; and Gregory Jr., 5 — both at Monte Vista School.

Greg Bean has the distinction of being one of the first male Girl Scout leaders, with his daughter's Troop 2069 at Carmel Woods School for four years during the '70s.

The door also swings "IN" for Handworks, replacing The New Englander on that busy block of Dolores between Ocean and Seventh.

Owners of Handworks are John and Peggy Coonley. Mrs. Coonley told the Business License and Code Review Board that they hope their shop will be "a refreshing change for the downtown area." She meant that they will feature American-made goods rather than imports. The emphasis will be on smaller items such as vases, goblets, kitchenware, clocks and wall accessories. Materials will be varied — ceramics, wood, fiber and metal. The Coonleys, who hope to open by the middle of June, will buy throughout the United States.

Meanwhile, they have returned to their part-time home in Massachusetts to close a similar business there and complete their move to Carmel. The couple has been living in the east about half the year and in Carmel the rest of the time; Carmel won out and will be their permanent home.

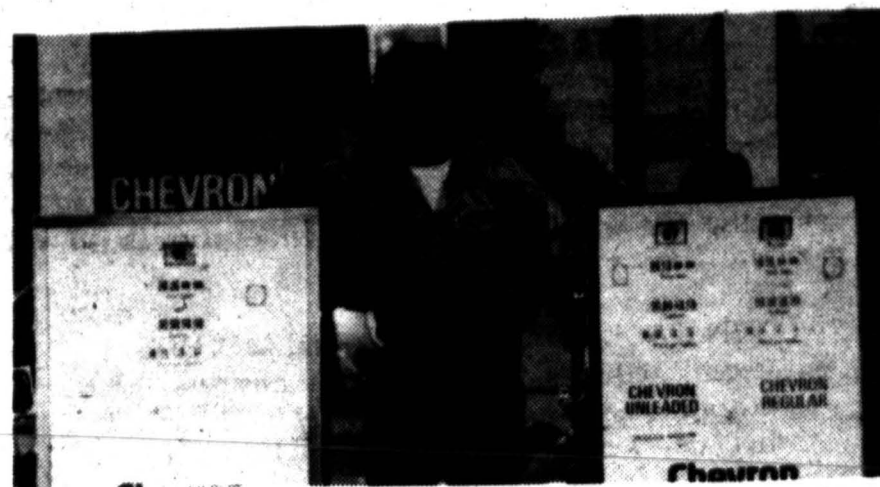

Calls for the Coonleys are taken by their friend, Ken Rohde, local architect who is redesigning the store for them. Rohde said he will use redwood in the interior and there will be "simple, clean lines to enhance the high quality products."

"OUT" AND "IN," STILL MORE...

A "Leatherhead" is a rare Australian bird. It is also the name of a fascinating new business in Carmel. Or perhaps it is the owners — Donald and Judith Baird — who are fascinating.

Leatherhead is scheduled to open around June 1 in part of the space vacated by the Tulip Basket. That's in the Su Vecino Court on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, right next to The Timepeace clock shop. Leather goods and accessories will be available, including hats, belts and bags. Most of them will be hand-crafted by Donald Baird, but the Bairds want to provide a place where other local artists can show their wares.

Mrs. Baird works primarily on the hats. The couple has had a wholesale business for nine years and has sold to such well-known stores as Abercrombie and Fitch, among others. The Bairds had a shop in The Barnyard, too, where they were among five "Artist Craftsmen in Residence." Donald Baird has fashioned a number of special orders for special people, including jockey weight pads for an Olympic trials contender and sculptured leather forms (pots, vases) for photographer-producer Allen Funt.

This versatile artisan also has studied blacksmithing and tool forging with Carmel Valley expert Alex Weygers. Baird helped with classes in those unusual trades.

The Bairds have been in the area for seven years, and have been residents of Carmel Valley for one. They have two "grown and gone" children, one of whom is in the Air Force and the other a student in Oakland. There isn't much point trying to distinguish the Bairds' vocations and avocations; they are one and the same. In fact, when Baird "got hooked" on crafts he abandoned a business career as regional manager for a large company.

Since the Carmel Planning Commission holds a tough line with regard to logos on local signs we may never see a Leatherhead in public. Baird says it looks "like a baby vulture." It was Mrs. Baird who found it in a very old dictionary she explored for a name; it took the Oakland Museum to produce a picture.

EVERY YEAR IS CHRISTMAS

We write a lot about businesses that come and go but there is no revolving door for one: Everyday is Christmas! The holiday shop recently celebrated its 35th anniversary with an open house on the upper level of Carmel Plaza.

The store has been at the Plaza five years. Before that — from 1947 to 1977 — it was on Ocean Avenue. To add to its distinction, it still has the same owner — Marion Brueck — but now with her daughter Grace Brueck as partner. To complete the family connection, Grace's son, Charles Houghton, was involved in the recent remodeling of cabinets in the shop and improvements in the lighting.

...AND IT'S STILL "IN" FOR DANSK II

There is no revolving door at Dansk, either. That empty look and the sound of hammers and saws since April 19 was just a "renovation." There is a new shipment for the reopening, about May 1, but it will be the same kind of merchandise for which the Ocean Avenue store is so well known.

IN CASE YOU WONDERED, AS I DID

Two recent requests for changes in business licenses to permit existing businesses to expand may have seemed similar but in fact they were quite dissimilar, and the decisions were different.

One was Cafe Au Lait's request for an expansion of its license to sell sandwiches and other food, in addition to the coffee and beignets with which they opened. This request was approved.

The second was a request by owners of Sade's Bar to serve food. This was denied by the planning commission. The difference, I learned, was that Cafe Au Lait was already licensed as a restaurant, so that application was merely for additional menu items. Sade's applied to become a restaurant, which would be a new business category for them.

The planning commission denied that request based on the city moratorium on proliferation of non-resident oriented businesses, including restaurants, art galleries and gift shops. Sade's appeal of the decision is on the agenda for the May 4 city council meeting.

SMALLER IS BETTER

It's just a change in emphasis for Marjorie Hannas and Carmel Antiques. The Dolores Street shop, next to the Village Theater, has a new word on its business license: jewelry.

Since its opening at that location in 1977, the store has offered antique furniture, including some rather large pieces. Marjorie Hannas told the business license board she is "tired of pushing all that big heavy furniture around." So she sought and won approval to have her license read, "antiques, gifts and jewelry." "Gifts," a small part of the business, covers reproductions, such as brass items. Ms. Hannas has always included antique jewelry; the revised license will permit her to sell new jewelry also.

LAW DAY

Saturday, May 1 is Law Day. Planned "to increase people's awareness of the legal system and their place in it," Law Day offers an opportunity to highlight at least one aspect of the legal system: Lawyer's Referral Service.

For information, I turned to a man who was born and raised in Carmel, now has general law offices in Monterey, and has been chairman of Lawyers' Referral Service for more than three years: Mike Newman.

Newman told me that Lawyers' Referral Service was set up by the Monterey County Bar Association and is overseen by the association and ultimately by the State Bar Association, which established standards for such services.

"So it's a supervised operation," Newman said. "Its purpose is to direct people to a lawyer when they have not had contact with one before and don't know anyone else to ask." He said a common complaint is that the person who needs a lawyer has no way to know strengths and weaknesses of a particular one. "People tend to be intimidated by lawyers; they don't ask enough questions."

Lawyers' Referral Service has separate panels of attorneys in general practice and in such specialties as bankruptcy and workmen's compensation. A reorganization of the service is underway and one of its chief goals is to improve referrals for other specialties, such as criminal law and family law, so the potential client is given local referrals.

The service is working on a system for calls to go through the Monterey County Bar Association offices, where they will be answered by Executive Director Eileen Wright of Carmel or by a knowledgeable assistant. Calls now go through an answering service in Salinas equipped to do little more than give formal referrals from an established list. "They aren't familiar enough with the many different kinds of legal problems," Newman said.

"We get a great many calls from clients with minor criminal problems," Newman told me. Attorney advertising has made many people familiar with specialists who handle major criminal cases, but for minor cases and many other specialties a referral service is vital, he added.

Newman attended Carmel Woods School, Sunset School and Carmel High School. His legal training was at U.C. Davis. He and his wife, Virginia, have two sons: Mickey, 6, and Robinson, 4. His favorite hobby: surfing at Carmel Beach.

WOMEN IN BANKING: ANOTHER ADVANCEMENT

Lynn Morris, trust officer in Wells Fargo's Carmel district trust office, has been named assistant vice president. The Carmel Valley resident started in that branch in 1976 as an administrative assistant and has been a trust officer for three years.

Mrs. Morris' duties will still consist mainly of administration of trusts and estates. Born and raised in Kentucky, she has been a Peninsula resident since 1972. She graduated from Monterey Peninsula College. Active in community affairs, she manages to juggle her responsibilities as treasurer of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and member of the Junior League with business and home responsibilities. She and her husband, attorney Sidney Morris, are the parents of four-year-old Lindsay and two-year-old Joshua.

It's not surprising that when I asked her about hobbies, she laughed and said: "I haven't got time!"

DON'T TREAD ON ME

The game is getting easier! It didn't take long for me to identify the flag flying in front of Paradise Mall last week: The yellow field, with a brown snake coiled as if to strike, and black letters spelling "Don't Tread On Me" was the flag used by Commodore Esek Hopkins, the first Commander in Chief of the Navy.

If some historians say: "It's the Gadsen Flag," they are correct, too. It is sometimes called that because a copy was made for the South Carolina legislature. Christopher Gadsen was a Revolutionary leader, born in Charleston, S.C., who was one of the first to urge colonial union. He served in the Continental Congress, was captured by the British and later helped to secure ratification of the Constitution.

***

The International Spa and Tub Institute honored Locksin Thompson of Blackthorne Hot Tubs and Landscaping in Carmel Valley. Thompson was given the Eagle Award for outstanding contributions to the industry.

LYNN MORRIS is a new assistant vice-president of the Wells Fargo trust office in Carmel.

Weston images draw art lovers

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

Art lovers and collectors, some from as far away as New York, were out en masse for the champagne reception exhibition of Edward Weston's works held at the Weston Gallery in Carmel last Friday evening.

The exhibition titled "Edward Weston: Passion and Precision Made One — An Exhibition of Vintage Photographs" is the first show of original Edward Weston prints in this country (in a gallery) in more than five years.

The show inaugurated the Weston Gallery's new exhibition space, and offered visitors the opportunity to browse through three large room areas to view the rare collection of Weston's works. The photographs date from as early as 1920 through the mid-1940s and include important representative samples of Weston's most significant styles and subjects.

Weston's former wife and model, Charis Wilson, was among the guests as were Weston's sons, Brett and Neil. Neil, with wife, Kraig, and grandson, Todd, proudly posed with a photograph of Neil taken by Edward Weston when Neil was a young boy.

Allen Funt, who looks great these days, was there with his daughter, Julie, and spent much time studying the exhibit.

Gallery owner Maggi Weston, looking gorgeous in a long, black velvet gown with an unusual belt, greeted guests, as did her gallery assistant Russell Anderson.

Maggi first exhibited photographs in the gallery about eight years ago and since that time the gallery has attained an international reputation as representing fine and rare examples by master photographers. Her belief and support of fine art photography is demonstrated by the fact that she has been paying world-record prices for Edward Weston photographs since 1979, when she purchased his famous "Shell, 1927," at Christie's, New York for $9,500. The rarity and record prices for original Edward Weston photographs has continued to escalate.

The Edward Weston exhibition which will be on view through June 20 is especially important since it makes available to collectors both pieces from Maggi's private collection and many images in the gallery inventory that are for sale.

Clients who attended the opening of the exhibition included some from New York, Chicago, Texas, London and other parts of the world.

CARMEL VALLEY SECRETARIES ENJOY EIGHT-HOUR LUNCH DURING SECRETARIES' WEEK

We've all heard of "banker's hours" and "sneaking a two hour lunch." But an eight-hour lunch with your boss — WOW!

That's exactly what happened to a group of Carmel Valley secretaries who were treated to lunch by their bosses at Los Laureles Lodge during annual Secretaries' Week.

The luncheon got underway at 12 noon and although some of the group had to call it quits before the affair broke up around 9 p.m., all admit they had a wonderful day.

MAGGI WESTON and her gallery associate, Russell Anderson, share a toast at the reception.

EDWARD WESTON's son, Neil Weston, was present with his wife, Kraig, and grandson Todd.

SHOWING OFF their baby daughter, Rosalyn, at the art exhibition, are Maggi Weston's daughter, Cara Ridell and her husband Brian. Gallery associate Lisa Cremin offers congratulations.

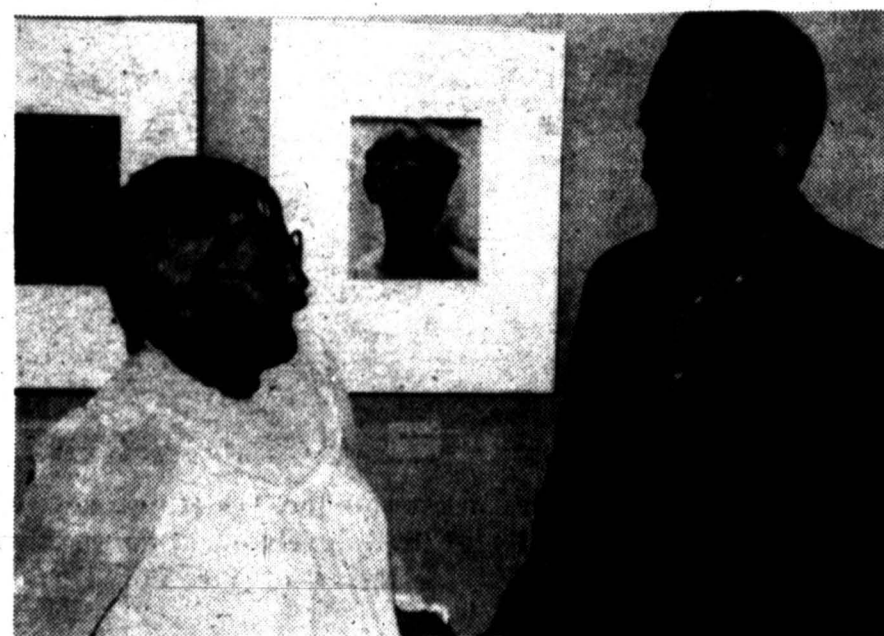

Those who attended included Susan Cassady and her bosses George Porter of Carmel Plumbing and Mike Zilljohn of Valley Village Refrigeration; Bill Parham, owner of Peninsula Septic Tank Services, and his secretary Dicki Harber and his bookkeeper Dorothy Mason. The ladies' other boss, Bill Simms, also joined in the fun.

Also making the scene were Carl Deitman and Dan Weiss of Deitman Plumbing and their secretary Lori Kline. Carl, by the way, was the super-gentleman who presented all the ladies with roses.

After enjoying a six-hour cocktails-and-lunch party at the

FIRST ELECTION

After California pledged its allegiance to the newly independent Mexican Empire in 1822, the first general election in this state was held in Monterey, May 21, 1822, and the first native-born governor, Luis Arguello, was elected.

Lodge, some of the group moved on to the Running Iron to continue the celebration.

I was a bit leery of asking how many of the secretaries showed up for work the next day, but it's really not important, because in their own words "we were really 'Queen For a Day!'"

Interesting side note: Smack in the middle of the luncheon, Carl Deitman, a volunteer fireman, heeded the fire bell and took off like a streak! A few minutes later he arrived back at the luncheon delighted that he had missed the truck.

CHEERS FOR TOR HOUSE BENEFIT

Hawk Tower at Tor House — which stands majestically amid masses of blooming flowers and with a backdrop of the Pacific Ocean — was the ideal place for George White, president of the board of the Tor House Foundation, to present a brass key to Will Gahagen who was the first Executive Secretary of the Tor House Foundation which was established in 1977.

Gahagen and Fred Farr were two of the first Carmelites to recognize the importance of saving Tor House and Hawk Tower, and through the cooperation with the National Trust for Historic Preservation the Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation was established.

The brass key is a replica of the original iron key used by the Jeffers family and is still used to this day for opening the door of Tor House.

AMY GERAGHTY GOES ON BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

She's beautiful, she's a ball of energy, and she's a kid at heart, so it's not surprising that she couldn't celebrate her 90th birthday in one short day. Her friends feel the same way and parties in her honor are still happening.

The first one was given by Professor and Mrs. Richard Bell at their Carmel home and the guests were Amy's "Carmel Gang" — a group who celebrate bi-annually the fact that they're neighbors.

Guests included Amy's daughter and son-in-law, Pauline and Frederick Stanley, Frank and Margery Lloyd and their son, "Skip," and also Frank's brother.

Others were Aline (Maggie) Drury, Beverly Brownell, John Winchester Holman, Barbara and Howard Bucquet, Sue Lloyd, Will Van der Stuis and his daughter, Lisa Toland, Lisa Work (who flew in from Maui just moments before the gala started) and her husband, Tom (who was still in the process of unpacking), Janice and Ray Smith and Elizabeth Moore.

PROFESSOR AND MRS. RICHARD BELL, (standing) recently gave a 90th birthday celebration for Mrs. Amy Geraghty, seated, at their Carmel home.

The next celebration was a dinner party given by Fred's mom, Mrs. Carlos Stanley of Del Mesa Carmel. Naturally Fred and Pauline were there as were Irene and Ashton Stanley.

Party number three was a dinner at Simpson's Restaurant given by six of Amy's former fellow-workers from the Naval Purchasing Office in San Francisco where Amy worked as a purchasing agent for 22 years before she retired at age 70. The same group gave Amy another luncheon the following day at the Beach and Tennis Club and they were joined by Jack Robertson of Pebble Beach, who also worked with Amy during those San Francisco years. Jack, a retired captain, and his wife have lived in Pebble Beach for the past 10 years.

Easter Sunday brought more honors for Amy, who was the special guest at a family luncheon. Two of her 14 grandchildren, Chris and Sue Stanley, joined the fun.

Amy received congratulatory telephone calls, cards and letters from numerous friends and also from her 12 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren who were unable to attend. She also received flowers and gifts, including a beautiful bouquet from her daughter, Jacqueline Echeverria and her husband, Ricardo.

Last but not least on the list of parties was a small luncheon hosted by Pauline for her mom at Casa Abrego. Guests included Betty Bell and Maggie Drury.

A toast to Amy, who is probably still celebrating! MARGY TAKES IN BROADWAY AND HIRSHHORN MUSEUM

Margy Neswitz loves to see my eyes turn a wild, envious green! And they did just that when I received a postcard from her featuring a replica of the George Luks painting "Girl in Orange Gown" which hangs in the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington, D.C. Joe Hirshhorn is gone now, but before his death he and his wife, Olga, owned a beautiful home in Naples, Fla., and countless are the hours I listened to Joe weave fascinating tales of life and his love of art.

Margy brought back a flood of memories by writing that during her recent vacation to New York she spend a few days in Washington, D.C. and "went to the fabulous 'Hirshhorn.'"

She says she had a great time in the Big Apple and saw such Broadway plays as "Crimes of The Heart," "Eminent Domain," "The Dresser," and "42nd St." She also visited the beautiful new Michael Rockefeller Wing at the Metropolitan Museum. Now she says it's back to work for the Docent Council of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, and she adds: "It's nice to be home and be with my super-husband."

BIRTHDAY BASH FOR SIX MEMBERS OF THE ERNEST ROY MARSHALL FAMILY

Large families can create all sorts of reasons for celebrations

but the event at the Carmel Valley home of Ernie and Anne Marshall last weekend was an all-time winner.

So that no one would be left out or forgotten, family members have been preparing for this event for the last two years. Six family members have April birthdays so the event was aptly titled an "April Birthday Celebration."

To keep the family tree in proper order I'll name the most honored guests and tell you a bit about them.

Mrs. Essie Greene: Essie is from Farmersburg, Ind., and celebrated her 91st birthday on April 28. Her signature is one of those which appears on the 50-year-old quilt done for Inez Martin following the loss of her home. The quilt and all the Indiana neighbors who created it were a subject of discussion during the festivities.

Mrs. Inez Martin: Inez, the mother of Anne Marshall, celebrated her 83rd birthday (along with her twin) on April 22. She accompanied Essie from Farmersburg, which is home to both of them.

Mrs. Iva Beardshear: Iva is Inez's twin sister and made the trip to join in the fun. Rumor has it that their mom refused to accept the names of Jess and Bessie for the twins.

Pamela Marshall: Pam, who celebrated her 34th birthday on April 23, arrived from Washington, D.C. for the party. She is employed as an extension agent in floriculture and is an excellent artist and craftsman. Her works appear throughout the Marshall home.

David Marshall: David is from Colorado Springs, Colo. and celebrated his 30th birthday on April 8. He graduated from Monterey Peninsula College and is branch manager for C.C.A. Corporation.

Cindy Marshall of Carmel Valley was 20 on April 18. She is a York School graduate and it employed at Pewter Windmill in mid-Valley and attends college.

Party hosts, Ernie and Anne, longtime residents of Carmel Valley, are the parents of the six "Marshalls" who attended the party. They will celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary this year. Ernie is vice-president of the Carmel Valley Garden Club, president of Soil Service in Salinas and author of a gardening column. Anne is active in California Women for Agriculture, Monterey Peninsula Volunteers, Carmel Valley Women's Club and the Carmel Valley Garden Club.

Guests included Lindasue Marshall who is better known as Klutzo — the juggling cowboy clown; Ernie Marshall, Paul Lapidus, John Paul, David Paul and his girlfriend Kathy.

Although the big bash was held this past weekend, the festivities began the weekend of April 12 when the three eldest members of the celebration arrived.

Dinner included champagne, birthday cake and fabulous barbequed chicken prepared with Essie's secret recipe that originated in the family many years ago and has become a tradition.

A family celebration for birthdays from 20 to 91 — it doesn't happen everyday so let's add our "Best Wishes To All!"

TIMOTHY KEARNS HONORED

Senior Timothy Kearns of Carmel is one of 143 Northern Arizona University students elected to membership in the Phi Kappa Phi national honor society.

The academically outstanding students were recognized by the society at an invitation banquet at NAU on April 17. The banquet was the final event of Honors Week at the university.

49er star will sponsor Carmel benefit golf

The Freddie Solomon Celebrity Golf Tournament to benefit the National Kidney Foundation of Northern California will be played at Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley Monday, May 17.

The one-day tournament will use the scramble system with a shotgun start. One celebrity will be teamed with four golfers. There will be 180 golfers in 36 fivesomes.

The tournament will begin with registration and breakfast from 8:30-10:30 a.m. Golf will be played from 10:30 a.m.-4 p.m. followed by cocktails and a reception from 4-6 p.m. An awards dinner will be served at 6 p.m. at Quail Lodge.

Jack Hansen, KGO-TV personality, will be master of ceremonies. Participating celebrities will include Fred Solomon, John Ayers, John Choma, Randy Cross, Milt McColl, Bill Ring, Charlie Young, Guy Benjamin, Dwight Clark, Walt Downing, Craig Puki and Mike Shuman as well as 49ers coaches Sam Wyche, Billy Mathews, Milt Jackson and Billy Weston. Members of the San Francisco Giants, Oakland Raiders and Hollywood comedian Johnny Yune are also expected to participate.

Freddie Solomon, the speedy wide receiver of Super Bowl Champions, the San Francisco 49ers, is an active volunteer for the National Kidney Foundation. He has sustained kidney damage twice during his NFL career.

Tax-deductible sponsorships include a $1,000 gold sponsor; $500 silver sponsor; $300 bronze sponsor; and $500 hole sponsor. Gallery tickets are $10.

For tickets write 88 Enterprises, Inc., Anne Warner, President, 2001 Gateway Place, Suite 270, San Jose, CA 95110 or phone 1-279-4419.

Solomon and other 49ers will sell gallery tickets and sign autographs from noon-3 p.m. Saturday, May 15 in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel; and Sunday, May 16 at the Strawberry Patch, Ocean and San Carlos.

Merchants will discuss water

The Carmel Business Association will discuss water issues in the Carmel area when it meets at 8 a.m. Thursday, May 6 at La Playa Hotel, Eighth and Camino Real, Carmel.

A draft of an ordinance amending the planning and zoning code to add "regulating the consumption of water" is under study by the city council. This change will affect residents of Carmel.

John Logan, a city planning commissioner and water expert, will speak on the historical background of water allocation.

Bruce Buel, director of Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, will talk on how to solve the water problem.

A representative of California American Water Co. will discuss supply, distribution and rationing methods in case of a water shortage.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations.

The public is welcome to attend. For further information, phone 624-2522.

He fell in love with the valley

A charming accent, delightful sense of humor and a deep belief in his product are among the attributes Graham Pike brings to his work. A month ago, the British-born Pike joined Wester/Saab in the Monterey Peninsula Auto Center to introduce the new Saab Turbo "A.P.C."

Like so many others, Graham first fell in love with California while vacationing here in 1977. The 30-year-old native of Bristol now lives in Carmel Valley with two friends, John Noble and Laurie Hirsch, and says, "With the beauty, peace and tranquility here, it is like being on a permanent vacation. I hope I can find a nice apartment to enable me to say in the Valley."

The new Saab Turbo (A.P.C. stands for "Automatic Performance Control"), was introduced March 1. Graham says it is the world's only turbo that goes faster on less gas. Of the Saab in general, he believes it is "one of the most underrated cars in the world," and one of the safest cars on the road. "I know people who are alive today only because they were driving a Saab," he says. The cars are noteworthy for their versatility, high performance and comfort.

Graham's other interests — when he can find the time — are horseback riding, sports car racing, good food and food friends.

Institute will sponsor annual college days-alumni weekend

The Annual Alumni College-Day Weekend sponsored by the Monterey Institute of International Studies is planned Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1.

Alumni who have launched careers in government and business fields will provide career guidance counseling to institute students from 3-5 p.m. Friday in Rooms 118 and 119, on campus, 424 Van Buren, Monterey.

Reaganomics and Its International Implications will be the topic of the annual spring mini-seminar presented from 9:30 a.m.-noon on Saturday.

Gordon Paul Smith, a member of the board of trustees of the institute, a consultant to the Hoover Commission and formerly a vice president of Booz, Allen and Hamilton, will lead the seminar. Smith was appointed state director of finance when Ronald Reagan was governor of California.

Other panelists will include Dr. Stephen Garrett, Stephan Zimmermann, an alumnus and international investment counsellor, and Richard Bitzinger, political analyst.

The mini-seminar will be given in the Morse Auditorium. The public is welcome at no charge.

Lunch will be served in the People's House. Cost is $5.

The annual volleyball game between students, faculty and staff will begin at 2:30 p.m. Trophy presentation and refreshments will be offered at the home of President William G. Craig following the game.

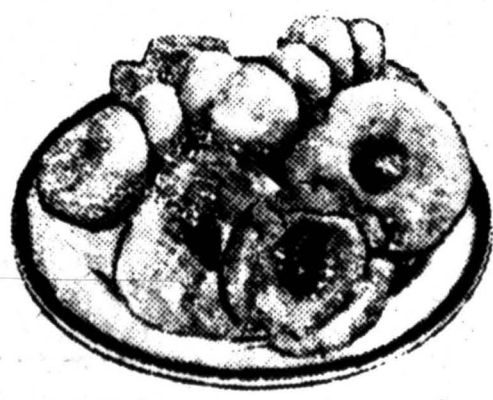

The weekend will conclude with a buffet dinner-dance from 7 p.m.-1 a.m. at the Outrigger Restaurant, 700 Cannery Row, Monterey. Cost is $20.

"We want all our former students, especially those living in the area, to come back and renew old acquaintances and to see all the great things happening here," said Dusty Brewster-Cusimano, director of alumni relations.

For reservations and information, phone 649-3113, ext. 75.

Council may revamp General Plan Committee

A proposal by Councilwoman Helen Arnold to revamp the General Plan Advisory Committee will be presented to the Carmel City Council May 4.

Mrs. Arnold wants to increase the number of committee members from seven to 15 and number of alternates from two to four.

Also, her proposal says that committee members could select specific elements of the general plan that they wish to study and not serve when other topics are under discussion.

Mrs. Arnold said some potential committee members are "scared off" because they do not have the time to attend all meetings, but said they would like to serve when specific elements are discussed.

"I'm trying to broaden the base and get more representation," Mrs. Arnold said.

"We have a group of very dedicated people now, but I think we need more input."

Committee membership has dwindled in recent months with the resignation of one member, John Eatherton, and death of Les Gross. Alan Williams and Gene Hammond, the original two alternates, were appointed to fill the vacancies.

However, the council did not fill the two alternate positions and at least three members of the committee will be absent for the next three scheduled meetings.

The committee is charged with review of the 1973 general plan and will make recommendations for changes to the planning commission, probably in September. The city council must adopt the final plan.

Besides Williams and Hammond, other committee members include Chairwoman Jane Mayer, Don Davidson, Gordon Campbell, Dottie Lillard and Jean Grace.

An application for membership to the committee is available at city hall.

Candidate for Senate will speak

Local citizens will have the opportunity to meet Congressman Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr., candidate for the United States Senate, at a reception from 4-7 p.m. Sunday, May 2 in the Mission Ranch Barn, 26270 Dolores, Carmel. Vicki Scardina and her country/western band will play for the reception. Hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar will be available.

A dinner honoring McCloskey will be given at Rancho Canada immediately following the reception.

McCloskey will speak briefly about his campaign and issues of local interest.

A member of the Merchant Marine & Fisheries Committee and an active member of the International Whaling Commission and the Law of the Sea Conferences, McCloskey recently worked on a successful effort to add an additional California member to the Pacific Management Fisheries Council. He has supported legislation that would have added funds for salmon fisheries research in the current budget.

Cost to attend the reception and dinner is $100; cost for the reception only is $25. For reservations and further information, phone 375-4556 or 659-4555.

Checks should be made payable to Californians for McCloskey, 812 Cannery Row, Monterey, CA 93940.

Highlands fire chief to be honored

A retirement party honoring Carmel Highlands Fire Chief Robert Meloney will be given from 3-6 p.m. Sunday, June 6 at the Highlands Inn, Highway 1, Carmel.

Cost for the party, gift and hors d'oeuvres is $5. There will also be a no-host bar.

Reservations must be made by May 15. For reservations and further information, phone 624-2374.

BOTH LANDED AT SAME SPOT

The two parties which made Monterey Bay known and later made Monterey exist both came ashore on the same part of the beach, just south of the Presidio of Monterey on Pacific St., in present-day Monterey. They were groups led by Sebastian Vizcaino in 1602 and Fr. Junipero Serra in 1770. A monument marks the location.

After living in L.A. for thirty years, we love life here in Carmel. But too many people are moving here.

"Growth" is on the minds of people who live on the peninsula. When The National Bank of Carmel sent out a community survey that asked, "What do you think are the greatest problems facing us on the peninsula?", over 80% of you mentioned growth in one way or another.

The above response from a couple who recently moved here points up the complexity of the growth question.

A lot of people move to Carmel because they like its small town feeling. But by moving here, they make it a little bigger town.

Sometimes this leads to a "let me move here then let's raise the drawbridge" point of view.

What's the solution?

On one hand, it is a free country and people can move where they wish. Tourists are free to go where they want to go.

On the other hand, as one gentleman who wrote us puts it so well, "we only have so much land, our tourist accommodations can hold only so many tourists and our roads can only accommodate so many vehicles."

If you have any thoughts on what we can do about growth, individually or collectively, send them to The National Bank of Carmel, P.O. Drawer TT, Carmel, CA 93921.

We'll publish a summary of what local people think about this controversial issue later in the year.

Petpourri

Prevent parvovirus

By JUDITH A. EISNER

FOR EVERY PLUS, there is a minus; for every good, there is a bad. Take springtime, for example. It is a time of blossoming, of renewal, of rebirth for all creatures — and there's the rub. True, the birds are nesting, the flowers blooming and puppies, kittens, lambs, foals, calves and wild babies are being born. But the viruses and bacteria are right on top of things.

Even as the weather warms and children shed their down jackets, so do chicken pox, measles, mumps and rubella make an assault on local schools. And as the heaviest concentration of puppies and kittens are born, distemper and other lethal diseases run rampant.

Most conscientious breeders and pet owners have long been aware of the need to inoculate their dogs and cats against a variety of illnesses. Puppies traditionally received vaccination for canine distemper, hepatitis and leptospirosis and, soon after they reached four months of age, against rabies. Kittens were inoculated against feline distemper, panleukopenia and certain respiratory (pneumonitis) illnesses. Thus inoculated, pet owners were smug in the knowledge that their pets were as well-protected as their children were from their immunization against polio or measles.

A CRUEL BLOW was dealt to dog owners and professionals in the summer of 1978 with the sudden appearance of canine parvovirus (CPV). It struck quickly and spread with frightening rapidity. Dogs in concentrated populations — at kennels, humane societies and dog shows — were infected en masse with devastating results. And CPV was especially lethal to young puppies; many died within 24 hours of contracting the disease.

An example of the virulence of CPV is shown by its spread throughout North America, Scandinavia and Western Europe, South Africa, Australia and parts of Southeast Asia within the first year of its occurrence.

Symptoms of CPV include severe and extremely contagious enteritis (intestinal inflammation) evidenced by diarrhea, often accompanied by vomiting. In young puppies, inflammation of the heart muscle is an added complication.

CPV virus reproduces in cells that are in the process of dividing. It may affect the heart, intestinal lining, lymph system or bone marrow. The form and severity of CPV depends on the site of infection and the age of the dog.

If parvovirus affects the intestines and lymph system, enteritis results. The first symptoms may be depression and loss of appetite with possible severe vomiting. Fever and diarrhea follow within six to 24 hours and, if not checked, result in dehydration and death.

Dogs affected by CPV run temperatures between 104 and 106 degrees. Red, raised sores may be present in the mouth. In addition, dogs infected by CPV are subject to other diseases because parvoviral infection may suppress the dog's immune system.

Treatment of parvoviral enteritis is both lengthy and costly. Fluids and electrolytes need to be replaced to combat dehydration. Medication is administered to control diarrhea and vomiting. Antibiotics fight secondary infections. Success varies. Approximately 75 percent of all puppies less than five months old and two to three percent of older dogs die after contracting CPV.

THE OTHER FORM of CPV is the cardiac syndrome or myocarditis (inflammation of the heart muscle). This is most prevalent in puppies less than three months of age. CPV reproduces in the rapidly growing heart muscle cells and causes them to die or stop functioning.

Affected puppies may stop nursing, cry and gasp for breath. Death may follow immediately or several days later. Myocarditis may occur without the enteritis form of CPV or may appear three to six weeks after a dog has apparently recovered from enteritis.

Even if the dog survives the myocardial infection, resultant heart damage may be so severe that death from heart failure or complications may follow. Unfortunately, there is not yet an effective treatment for parvoviral myocarditis.

FORTUNATELY, there is now a safe vaccine for canine parvovirus. At first, researchers turned to the vaccine for feline panleukopenia (FPL) because of the similarity in the viruses, and FPL vaccine did help. However, it did not provide a long-term immunity to CPV.

Subsequently, an inactivated canine parvovirus vaccine was developed that provided high levels of immunity with a high degree of safety.

Healthy dogs should be immunized against CPV in two doses administered three to four weeks apart. Puppies will need revaccination after three months of age.

Veterinarians no longer speak about "DHL" (distemper-hepatitis-leptospirosis) boosters. They now discuss DHL-Parvo boosters. If your dog has never been vaccinated against canine parvovirus, you are courting disaster. It is very inexpensive health insurance and now is the time to apply for it.

"GENERAL BOY," a band of three Carmel High School students, won first place in the district talent contest at the annual high school Key Club convention in San

Carmel band captures top honors at Key Club

Three members of the Key Club of Carmel High School were named as the most talented participants in a talent show at a Key Club convention in San Diego. Dan Yoshizato, Paul Everts and Matt Wilson, members of the rock band General Boy, played The Cars' song "Just What I Needed" to a standing ovation on Saturday, April 17.

The number was dedicated to Henry Avila, the late band teacher at Carmel High.

"We had a lot of fun, and it's really important that Mr. Avila got the recognition," said Yoshizato, a senior and the band's guitarist. Thirty different Key Club chapters were represented in the talent show, though Carmel High featured the only rock band.

There were a total of 20,000 Key Club members from high schools in California, Nevada, and Hawaii. The 10 Carmel High School members left the Peninsula on Friday, April 16, and returned on Sunday, April 18.

Father Farrell's wisdom

The pursuit of happiness

In the Declaration of Independence, we read these words, "We hold these truths to be self evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Madison Avenue and its advertisers on T.V., the radio and in the press tell us that it is easy to find happiness — all we have to do is to buy and eat bubbly bran for breakfast, brush our teeth with Pearly Paste or shop at a certain shop for your sports jacket and we will have it made. Why, then, does happiness, genuine happiness, seem so elusive?

Man was made for happiness and not only do we have an inalienable right to pursue it — we have a compulsion to seek it.

However, there is an axiom that the more we seek happiness, the less chance we have of finding it. Happiness is a free gift of God and if we do not get it from Him, we do not get it. While we are busy about God's business, like serving our neighbor above ourselves, happiness will steal quietly into our lives. We only look closely to see that our human ways of searching for happiness are failures.

So the search for happiness is not a question of our way or God's way — it is God's way or nothing. It's that simple — it's the only way it works. So start at once to give service and you'll get more than you bargained for — you'll end up a happy man.

John Cheney wrote:
"The happiest heart that ever beat
was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet,
And left to Heaven the rest."

Time to renew dog licenses

The Monterey County SPCA has announced that annual city and county dog licenses will expire on April 30 and must be renewed prior to May 31 to avoid payment of a penalty fee.

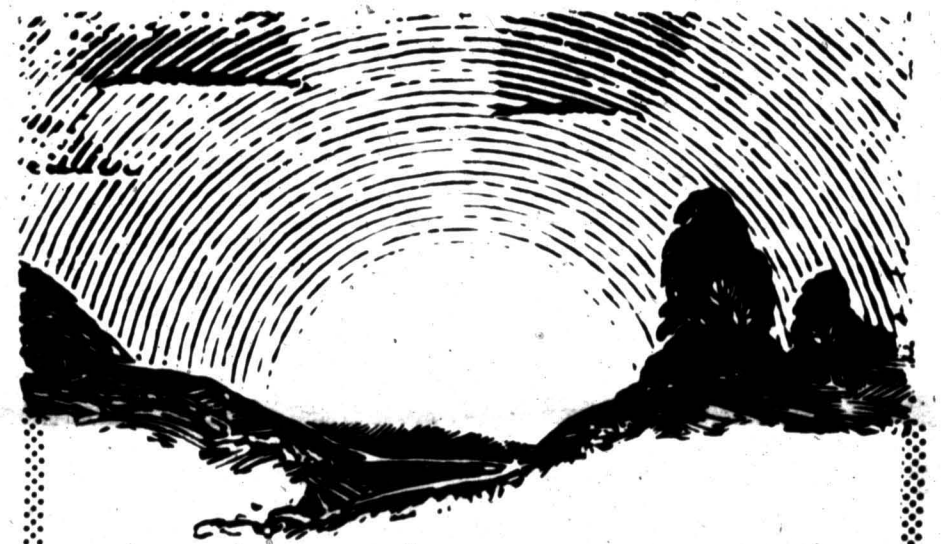

A valid rabies vaccination certificate is required to obtain a license. Dogs vaccinated prior to Dec. 1, 1980 will require a new rabies vaccination this year.

Persons living in unincorporated areas of Monterey County may obtain a dog license from the health department or the SPCA, 1002 Monterey/Salinas Highway.

Those living in incorporated cities of Monterey, Carmel, Marina, Gonzales, Soledad, Pacific Grove, Sand City, Greenfield, Seaside or Del Rey Oaks may obtain a dog license from their respective city halls.

Late penalties range from $3-$15, depending on the city or unincorporated area.

For further information, phone 373-2631.

Four Carmel men try life in the fast lane

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

FOUR CARMEL area men got a taste of life in the fast lane last week racing Formula Fords around the Laguna Seca track at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

Peter Schlicht, George du Bet, Marvin Goldstein and Leslie Leslie opened their checkbooks for $895 to live out a fantasy and all four believe it was worth the cost.

The Monterey version of Fantasy Island is offered by the Jim Russell British School of Motor Racing, and features three days of instruction.

Schlicht, who owns Peter's European Foods in Carmel, was the only member of the quartet who had previous racing experience. He competed in Munich, West Germany before he came to the United States.

"It's a completely different driving experience," he said. "The performance of the car is just tremendous. The brakes, the handling is so different."

Schlicht hopes to use his experience from the driving school to enter his Austin Mini-Cooper in the historical car races, which are held in August in conjunction with the Concours d'Elegance in Pebble Beach.

"I would like to race. I think it would be fun. This will help me be ready," he said.

Du Bet said he signed up for the school because he wanted the challenge of participating in a high speed sport on land.

"I got involved in glider airplanes and did some sailing," he said. "It's a different kind of challenge. I was involved in air and sea sports, now on land. I've done all three."

Du Bet, who is a fitness instructor at Carmel Valley Racquet Club, drives a Mercury Comet when not on the race track.

"It's really coming down quick when I get back in the car," he said. "You have to come down to the real world of highway driving. It makes you more aware of people driving so carelessly."

Du Bet added that he hoped to use his experience to become more involved with the Formula Ford racing series.

"Excited, nervous, scared," was how Goldstein summed up his feelings when he first stepped into the racing machine.

"I did it for the experience. I just wanted to get the feeling of driving a race car," said the Carmel Valley chiropractor. "Now it's a lot of fun. It's exciting."

Leslie, who owns an automobile dealership in Seaside, used his experience from racing the big cars to help him improve his skill racing go-karts.

"I like to race go-karts. I race here and at Sears Point. Hopefully, I'll get immediate response from the school."

Leslie called the Formula Fords "very small. They make you feel very small too. They are very powerful."

Jacques Couture is the chief instructor and owner of the school at Laguna Seca. He believes that the only way to learn motor racing is to drive the cars.

"The basic school is three days with two and a half days in the cars," he said. "There's no substitute for being behind the wheel. You just have to go out there and make it happen and make it work."

The first day is spent getting to know the car, driving slowly around the track, viewing videotapes and learning other basic techniques.

Instruction shifts into full gear the second day when the students drive laps and then stop to listen to tips from Couture, who views the drivers from several spots on the track.

The third, and final day, is spent concentrating on improving technique and increasing lap times, he said.

Another annexation try

If protests are made by 25 to 50 percent of the registered voters, the council must approve annexation subject to a popular vote at election. And if more than 50 percent of the voters protest, annexation proceedings are terminated, Johnson said.

When the question of annexation came up in 1979, the original proposal was to annex not only Carmel Woods but also Hatton Fields, Carmel Point, and other unincorporated areas around Carmel.

LAFCO approved only the annexation of Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields, and that measure was defeated by 102 votes in November of 1979, with 555 votes for annexation and 453 votes against.

"This seems consistent with the principles of good government," Johnson said. "Annexation when we considered it in 1979 seemed like a very logical procedure. I would want to take an independent look at this application when it is filed."

OTHER ITEMS scheduled for consideration by the Carmel City Council at its May 4 meeting include second reading of an ordinance to require dogs to be leashed in the residential area.

City Administrator Doug Peterson said the council will have available language which would modify the ordinance to delete references to any animals other than dogs. As drafted, the ordinance requires dogs and all other animals to be leashed.

The measure only covers the residential area of the village and does not apply to the public beach areas. There is already a leash law in the commercial area of Carmel.

The council will also be briefed on the possibility of a local gasoline tax, as provided in Senate Bill 215, Peterson said. The measure empowers the county to levy a five-cent gas tax, three cents of which may be used to fund state highway projects in the county, such as the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

One cent of the local gas tax would be set aside for county use and the other one cent would be allocated to cities for road maintenance purposes, Peterson said. The Monterey County Transportation Commission has asked the Carmel City Council for its position on whether such a tax should be levied.

Councilman Frank Lloyd wants the council to take positions on the proposed large-scale mining of limestone at Pico Blanco in Big Sur and on nuclear weapons.

The council is also scheduled to hear an appeal from the planning commission of a denial to Sade's Bar to serve food. The meeting is open to the public.

Top racers challenge Laguna Seca

Laguna Seca Raceway will reverberate with the roar of some of the world's fastest cars during the 25th annual Datsun Monterey Triple Crown this weekend, May 1 and 2. Headlined by the 13th running of the Camel GT Challenge, the event is sanctioned by the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) and San Francisco Region, Sports Car Club of America (Nor-Am Fords).

Action at the 1.9-mile track, located on Monterey/Salinas Highway 68, will begin with practice and qualifying at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 1. Main event action begins at 11 a.m. Sunday with the 75-mile Camel GTU feature. Other Sunday events include the 75-mile Champion Spark Plug Challenge at 1 p.m.; the 100-mile Camel GT Sprint at 2:30 p.m.; and the Nor-Am Ford Challenge at 4 p.m.

In the line-up could be as many as six of the fast Lola Coupes (a record entry) which Brian Redman brought here a year ago for a winning international debut. John Paul Jr. and Danny Ongais will drive two of the Lola GTP coupes. Redman has since retired.

John Paul Jr., who won a record five straight IMSA features, looms as the man to beat. He was the runner-up here a year ago.

Danny Ongais, who has recovered from his serious crash at Indianapolis last May, is pictured here in a Porsche.

DANNY ONGAIS of Redondo Beach is considered a top contender at the 25th annual Datsun Monterey Triple Crown this weekend, May 1-2 at Laguna Seca Raceway, Monterey/Salinas Highway. Ongais, who suffered a serious crash at Indianapolis last May, is pictured here in a Porsche. Practice and qualifying will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Main event action will start at 11 a.m. Sunday.

PIANIST LEONARD PENNARIO, who has appeared throughout the United States and Europe, will be featured at the final concert of the Monterey County Symphony 1981-1982 season. Performances will be Sunday, May 2 at King Hall, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey; Monday, May 3 at Sunset Theater, Carmel; and Tuesday, May 4 at Sherwood Hall, Salinas.

Pennario to solo with symphony

Pianist Leonard Pennario will be guest soloist at the final concert series of the Monterey County Symphony 1981-1982 season in three concerts presented Sunday through Tuesday, May 2-4.

Under the baton of music director Haymo Tacuber, the orchestra will open an all-Beethoven program with the Prometheus Overture and will perform the Symphony No. 3 (Eroica). Pennario will play the Piano Concerto No. 4 in G Major.

Pennario's solo recitals and appearances with major orchestras in the United States and Europe are characterized by an excitement and virtuosity rare in the world of music. The London Times wrote, "Leonard Pennario is an extraordinarily refined artist with fingers as agile and a mind as subtle as those of the very greatest pianists memory can recall."

Acclaimed by critics as "The People's Choice," Pennario is a long-time favorite of local audiences.

The identical concerts will be presented Sunday, May 2 at King Hall, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey; Monday, May 3 at Sunset Theater, Carmel; and Tuesday, May 4 at Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main, Salinas. All concerts begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $8, $7.25, and $6.50 for the Carmel performance; $6.50 general, $3.50 enlisted military, and $3 students for the Monterey performance; and $6.50 general, $3.50 enlisted military and seniors, and $3 students for the Salinas performance.

Tickets for the Salinas performance are available in Salinas at Gadsby's in Old Town, and Books and Books in Main Street Center. Tickets for the Sunset Center may be purchased at the Carmel Music Store, Carmel.

For more information, phone 624-8511.

Tickets available for U.S. Open in Pebble Beach

The United States Open Golf Tournament will be played June 14-20 at Pebble Beach. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Arnold Palmer and many of the greatest names in golf will return to the Monterey Peninsula for the world's most prestigious golf title.

Golf course preparations are nearly complete. The fairways have been narrowed and the roughs grown long. "In fact, Pebble Beach is now in its final grooming stages," according to Tim Berg, general manager of the golf department. "The United States Golf Association has set their specifications and they are extremely pleased with the condition of the course."

The number of tickets available are limited. Season tickets are $90. Tickets for each tournament day, Thursday-Sunday are $22; tickets for each qualifying day Monday-Wednesday are $12. They are available at Ticketron outlets or by phoning the U.S. Open office, 649-6736.

Explorama series will close with armchair trip to Denmark

Denmark Today, the final program of the current Explorama travel-adventure film series, will be presented Thursday and Friday, May 6-7 in Sunset Theater, Carmel. Willis Butler, producer of the film, will be present to narrate it.

Butler was on location in Denmark for three months during the production of his film. He shot footage in Copenhagen, Helsingor, Odense, Ribe, Esbjerg, Legoland, Frederikshaven, Aarhus, Aalborg and the Tivoli Gardens.

Denmark traces the geographical and historical forces that have shaped Denmark into a cultural and physical bridge to the rest of Scandinavia.

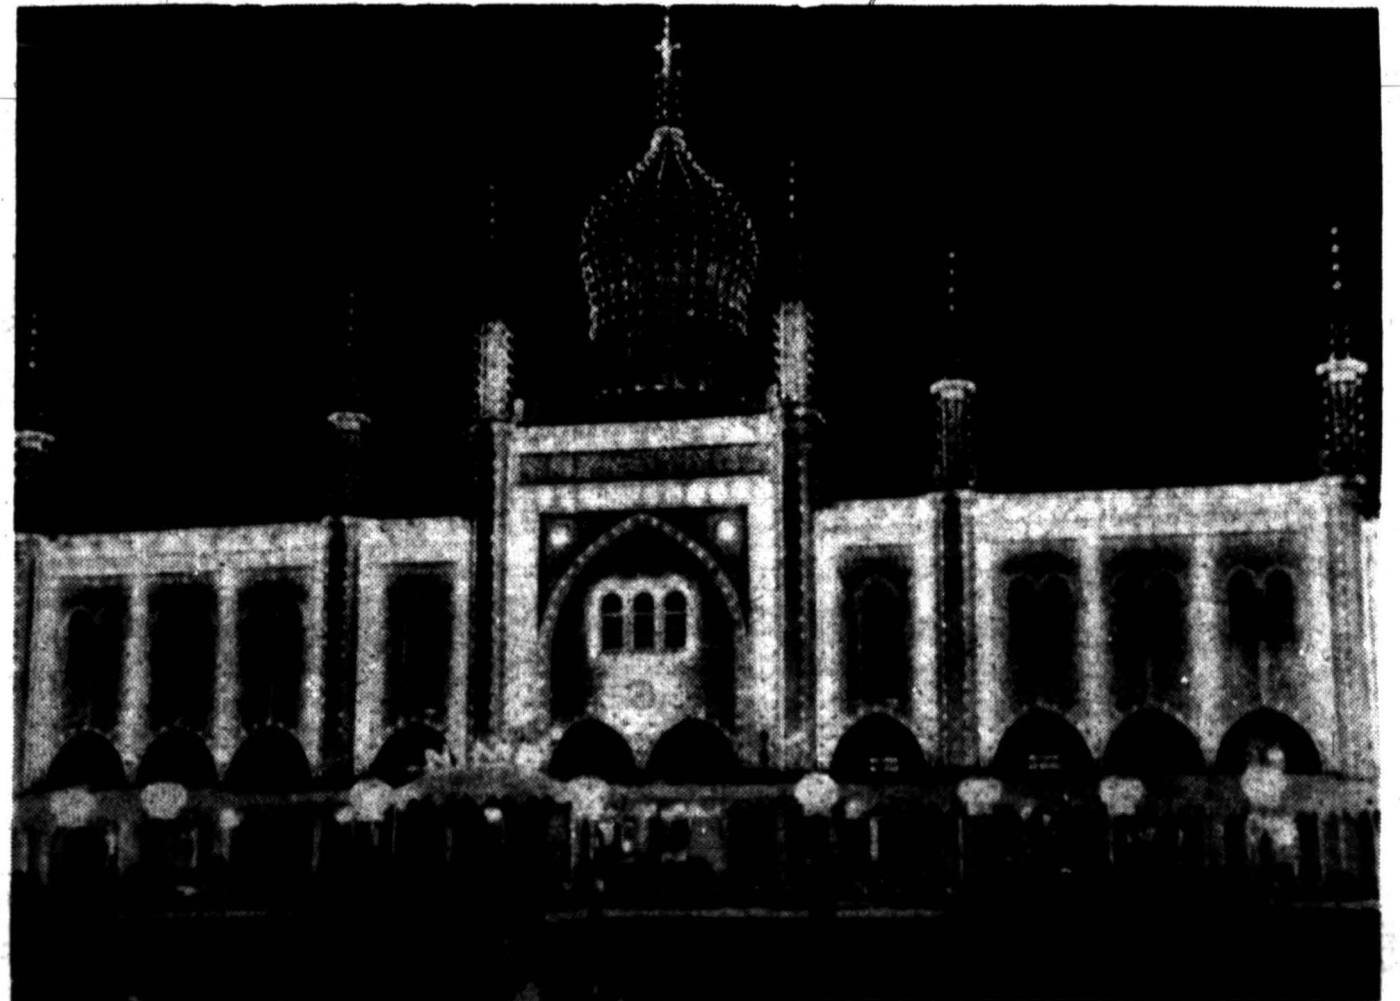

Denmark is the oldest kingdom in the world today — a country which at one time ruled most of England, parts of Germany and all of Sweden and Norway. Modern Denmark occupies the great Jutland Peninsula and 500 neighboring islands. It is a country of peaceful farmland, beaches, moors and dunes. It is a land complete with settings for Hamlet and the fairy tales of Hans Christian Andersen as well as a nation of remarkable industry, art and music.

Butler has been making professional motion pictures since 1953. He has also produced films for NBC.

Denmark will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, May 6 and at 2:30 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Friday, May 7.

Tickets are $5.25. They may be purchased at Abinante Music Store in Monterey or by writing Explorama, 701 Sutter St., San Francisco, CA 94109.

THE OPENING OF TIVOLI in the spring with happy Copenhageners, wonderful restaurants, spectacular flowers, fountains and music everywhere is part of Denmark, the last film in the current Explorama travel-adventure series.

Film review:

A breezy sex farce

By LISA JENSEN

Victor/Victoria. With Julie Andrews, Robert Preston and James Garner. Written and directed by Blake Edwards. A United Artist release.

Blake Edwards' last two films, 10 and S.O.B. were both uneven farces with contemporary sexual and social themes. In Victor/Victoria, he chooses a lavish period setting for the still very contemporary theme of sexual role-playing and comes up with one of his best films to date.

Julie Andrews plays the title role, a down-on-her-luck contralto stranded in 1934 Paris when her travelling opera company disbands. In a cafe where she's trying to cadge a free meal by slipping a cockroach into her salad, she's befriended by Toddy (Robert Preston), a homosexual American entertainer who's just been fired from his singing job at a gay cabaret.

With Toddy as her manager, Victoria embarks on a new career, disguising herself as a man who performs as a female impersonator. As an androgynous, soft-spoken Polish count called "Victor," she becomes the toast of Paris, performing dazzling song-and-dance routines in female finery at a chic nightclub, then "revealing" herself to the audience as a man.

The act is a sensation, and Victoria and Toddy move into the penthouse suite of a ritzy hotel. (Since everyone thinks Toddy and "Victor" are lovers, their living arrangement isn't considered odd.) Everything goes smoothly until one night when a tough-guy club-owner from Chicago named King (James Garner) catches Victor's act. Horrified to find himself attracted to the performer onstage even after she turns out to be Victor, King sets out to prove, if only to himself, that Victor is really a woman.

Edwards adopts a breezy sex farce approach, combining low-brow physical comedy with sophisticated, quick-witted dialog to deliver his insights on the nature of sexual identity. The bright patter between Toddy and Victoria and their enduring friendship is particularly engaging, and even the slapstick schtick is less intrusive than usual for Edwards (although we soon tire of characters endlessly sneaking in and out of doors and windows, bistro brawls and a bumbling, thoroughly unnecessary little detective who seems to be left over from one of Edwards' Pink Panther movies).

But while Edwards shrewdly pokes fun at the limitations of conventional sex role stereotypes, his point is often a little confused. Lesley Ann Warren is hilarious as King's bimbo girlfriend who thinks her ample cleavage makes her a "real woman," but it's disturbing that she's the only other straight female in the movie. When King picks a fight in a working-class pub to prove himself, it's a clever lampoon of the ludicrous values of macho fellowship, but Edwards perpetrates other equally pointless male-female stereotypes when he shows King fidgeting at the opera while Victoria weeps, or Victor becoming ill at a brutal prize fight as King cheers.

For all its troubling mixed cues, however, Victor/Victoria still has enough buoyant good humor and panache to make it worth seeing. Andrews is poised and appealing as the girl who enjoys the "liberation" of being a boy. (Although she's not very convincing at it and it's never clear why her cabaret act wouldn't be just as big a hit without the disguise.) The always hearty, likeable Preston shows off his impeccable skill with a one-liner and Garner's masterful double-takes and befuddled stares are among the funniest things in the movie.

Neither the Henry Mancini-Leslie Bricusse songs nor the staging of them are especially memorable, except for one wildly tacky, raunchy burlesque routine by Warren and a chorus line of floozies. But Roger Maus' handsome production design is alone worth the price of admission, with its fabulous Deco interiors and quaint Parisian back streets fancifully recreated on a huge sound stage.

Victor/Victoria will appeal to the same mainstream audience that adored La Cage Aux Folles, as both films present comfortable, non-threatening gays in a non-realistic farcical setting. Fortunately, however, Victor/Victoria is just as funny and good-natured as its predecessor, which makes it one of the most entertaining movies to come along so far this year.

What's playing at the movies

Alice in Wonderland: Walt Disney's classic animated film of Lewis Carroll's ever popular story of Alice, for all ages. Rated GP. At the Dream Theater.

Allen: Suspense-filled film about the crew of a space vehicle that tracks down a distress signal to a wrecked spacecraft occupied by mushroom-like creatures. The heroine is played by Signourney Weaver. Rated R. At Cinema 70.

An American Werewolf in London: John Landis' film with many full moons, foggy moors, rotting corpses and howling werewolves. "The horror movie to end all horror movies." This film won the academy award for best effects. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

Cat People: Remake of the 1942 Jacques Tourneur cult film. Starring Nastassia Kinski, Malcolm McDowell and John Heard in a surreal erotic fantasy set in New Orleans. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Charlots of Fire: A wealthy Jewish boy becomes a star runner and a Scots missionary sprints for the glory of God. The two men, driven in different ways, lead England to gold medals and glory in the 1924 Olympics in Paris. Beautifully blended color photography. Starring Ben Cross, Ian Charleson, and Alice Krige. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

Christiane F: A far-out film about the teenage drug culture of Berlin, but could be any city in the world, with David Bowie. Rated R. At the Regency.

Death Trap: An Edgar Wallace mystery filmed in England in 1960. A girl, played by Barbara Shelly, learns her deceased sister drew some money from the bank before her death, but it seems to have disappeared. Albert Lieven also stars. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Dragonslayer: played by Peter MacNichol, is a film for all ages. Paramount Pictures and Walt Disney Productions present this spectacular film. At the Hill Theater.

If You Could See What I Hear: A biographical film on the blind singer Tom Sullivan, focusing on his college years. Starring Marc Singer, R.H. Thompson, Sarah Torgor and Shari Belafonte Harper. At the Center Cinemas.

On Golden Pond: Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda offer a story of a couple still passionately in love after 48 years. Jane Fonda plays their daughter. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Partners: The oddest team on the squad and the funniest cops in America. Benson is the cop who wants to clean up the streets. His partner just wants to redecorate. Ryan O'Neal and John Hurt portray police officers masquerading as a gay couple in order to track down a homophile killer. At the Center Cinemas.

Personal Best: Mariel Hemingway and Patrice Donnelly play the roles of women competing for the U.S. Olympics track and field team. Their performances have a deep feeling of honesty. The track and field events are captured with amazing sensuousness. Rated R. At the Valley Cinema.

Porky's: A ribald comedy of adolescence in the '50's directed by Bob Clark. The title is derived from the name of a notorious redneck dive to which six teenagers are hypnotically drawn in the belief that they can purchase carnal experience on its premises. A youthful comedy which is a showcase for the six talented actors. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Quest For Fire: If you loved Chewbacca, you'll go ape over Naoh, Gau and Ika in this film. A story about early man and our beginning. Many strange beasts of prehistoric times such as vicious saber-toothed tigers and Indian elephants. There are some scenes to make you laugh, whether intentional or not. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theater.

Silent Rage: A Chuck Norris film. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Victor/Victoria: Romantic comedy set in the 1930's Paris. Julie Andrews stars as a down-on-her-luck singer and James Garner as a tough Chicago nightclub owner, with Robert Preston, Lesley Ann Warren and Alex Karras. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater.

Visit another world at Bay School carnival

The little red school house two miles south of Carmel on Highway 1 will be transformed into a magical world of distant lands for its annual Bay Day spring carnival from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. May 1.

Bay School, a parent cooperative operated through the Carmel Unified School District, sponsors the carnival to raise funds for activities.

There is no admission charge to the carnival and visitors will be greeted by students and their parents in costumes from different lands.

Game tickets will be sold for 10 cents each and there will be pony rides, a bake sale, silent auction and raffle.

Some of the raffle prizes include dinners, sports equipment, hair care, entertainment, toys, books and art.

A barbecue lunch will also be served.

More information is available from the school at 624-4397.

Laguna Seca racing action returns

Indianapolis last May, should give Paul a run for the top money. But it will be anything but a Lola parade.

The Champion Spark Plug Challenge features the introduction of the new front-wheel drive "K" and other American alphabet cars, and a Mazda GLC, which was second at Road Atlanta two weeks ago.

The net proceeds of the Laguna Seca racing season help support some 40 local charities. In the past 24 years these grants have topped $2 million.

Advance tickets are $14 for two days and $10 for Sunday. They may be purchased at BASS and Ticketron outlets, the Record Factory, Sears, and at the racetrack.

Tickets at the gate are $16 for two days and $12 for Sunday. Advance VIP tickets are $25 for both days, on sale at the track and at the regular outlets.

For further information, phone 373-1811.

Carmel Youth Baseball

By WENDY BANKS

AS DARKNESS crept in over Larson Field during this last week before Daylight Savings Time started, several Carmel Youth baseball games were called because of lack of light.

Beginning this week all games will start at 5:30 p.m. except for Saturday games which begin at 9:30 a.m. Carmelites are invited to come down to the field next to the Mission on Rio Road to watch the action.

Will Griffith accomplished an infield home run when Rudy-Harris faced Orange Julius in Mustang action. Also hitting well for Rudy-Harris was Justin Sturgeon who picked up a triple. Russell Peavey pitched the win for Orange Julius as well as getting two doubles as did Scott Gill; final score OJ 8, RH 2. Dick Bruhn blanked Orange Julius 9-0 with Scott Smith pitching and getting a triple. Clint Miller has two doubles for the winners, Josh DeChalk and Russell Peavey got two base hits for Orange Julius.

A close game saw the County Mounties take a 6-5 decision from Motorsports Ltd. of Monterey. Chris Prieto got credit for the win as well as going two for four; Matthew Dickerhoof got a double. Aaron Anderson went three for four along with a double for County Mounties. Kevin Winton got a double for Motorsports Ltd. Carmel Insurance got into the action with a 11-7 victory over Rudy-Harris. Hits galore came off the bats of Braulio DeAnda, Steven White, Jason Vogelpohl, and Matt Little who also was the winning pitcher for Carmel Insurance. Jimmy Witherell and Chris Cowels helped out Rudy-Harris.

Kevin Mahoney, making his pitching debut, struck out three batters in the fourth inning for Orange Julius when they faced Carmel Insurance. The scoreboard read OJ 12, CI 8 when all the dust had settled from the big bats of Russell Peavey, Kevin Mahoney, Scott Gill, and Adam Vesper, all of OJ and Matt Little and Jason Vogelpohl of CI.

On the Bronco field, John Roscelli fell to La Playa 11-9, and Mike Little got the credit for the win. Hitting doubles for Roscelli were Ali Monroe and Beau Brushert and Paul Wagstaff for La Playa. Aaron Eppler made two good catches for unassisted outs at first base when Derek Rayne came out on top of Nielsen Market 7-3. Christian Cumming (Derek Rayne) caught a high fly ball to rob Chris Stevenson of a hit. In another fielding situation, Josh Banks caught Eric Mahlum's hard-hit ball on the mound and later Josh put the tag on Steve Szasz at home plate with an assist from Stevenson. Craig Cox scored three runs for Derek Rayne.

Darren Read saved Pine Inn's 6-5 victory over John Roscelli when he caught a line drive to end the sixth inning with a runner left on third; he also was the pitcher of record. Hitting well for Roscelli were Michael Sobel, Beau Brushert, and Ali Monroe. Although down 9-1 after four innings of play, Nielsen Market came back with a rally in the fifth inning which wasn't quite enough; final score Pine Inn 14, Nielsen's 8. David Faber was the winning pitcher and Steve Pretzer did a great job behind the plate. Robert D'Attilio hit well for Nielsen Market.

LA PLAYA came up with two separate unassisted double-plays to beat Derek Rayne 8-3. In the fifth inning, Mindy Faia caught Brett Ledbetter's fly ball and put out Craig Cox at second base. In the sixth inning, Rein Wildschut caught Cory Keith's fly ball and stepped on first to put out Steve Szasz. Rein Wildschut and Paul Wagstaff collected doubles for La Playa while Craig Cox picked up one for Derek Rayne. Erik Sincoff and Chip Meheen both had two singles for La Playa.

Beau Brushert was a significant factor when John Roscelli edged out Derek Rayne in the seventh inning 10-9. Beau tallied up one single and one double which scored the winning run. Before that, in the second inning, he caught Brett Ledbetter's fly ball, tagged the runner off third base and threw to second baseman Jim Withershaw for the triple play.

In the girls' softball league, Monterey Peninsula Dental Group took a 12-5 game from St. Angela's of Pacific Grove. Christine Reding was the winning pitcher and the leading hitters were Dawn Rae, Angela Acuna, and Deanna DeRussi. Straw Hat scored an overwhelming victory against both their opponents this week. The first game was 20-4 and the second was 16-4. Megan Hansen was the winning pitcher for both games.

Home run hitters were Tyana Saxby, Tracy Schemmel, and Megan Hansen who also got a double, as did Hallie Levy and Tyana Saxby. Leading hitters were: Emily Rubin, Tina Mouton, Melissa King, Stephanie Sarkin, and Jennifer Yates. Straw Hat exploded in the fourth inning when the entire lineup came to bat and blasted away 12 hits with 12 runs scored.

Carmel Plaza lost to MPTV 6-4 despite Janine Pullen's great fielding in a tense play in the fifth inning; good hitters were Ann Marie Lowery and Kim Gisse. Monterey Peninsula Dental Group dropped a 13-18 game to Uyeda Brothers. Angela Acuna and Deanna DeRussi were effective for MPDG.

Darkness prevented an 8-8 tie after seven innings to be completed. Villiage Inn had lead until the last inning under the strong pitching of Stacey White who went the distance on the mound. Lori Palma had a great defense game at third base with Tammi Fuller covering home. Other strong defensive plays came from Amy Fuller, Anita Knauss, Carol Sepersky and Emily Banks. Elvina Scott's single in the second gave her two runs-batted-in and she made some terrific catches in the outfield. Amy Fuller collected a triple as the light faded in the final inning.

Pinto league teams don't keep official scorebooks as the emphasis in this league is on instruction and having fun. Each week the seven and eight-year-old members on each team will be mentioned. Players for Carmel Valley Ranch are: Julian Bernstein, Marlo Bertolucci, Sean Boehlje, Mark Brophy, Abram DeAnda, Matthew Connelly, Adam Conway, Erick Eyerman, Brooks Juhring, Robert Kirchenbauer, Jennifer Palmquist, Bill Ramos, and Cody West. The team is coached by Bob and Kathy Eyerman.

A GIANT PAPIER MACHE cheetah sculpture created by Sergio Bustamante is one of many animal sculptures on exhibit at the MichaelLee Gallery, The Crossroads, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel. Bustamante's life-sized papier mache and brass, copper, and silver animal sculptures have gained international recognition. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and Sunday from noon-5 p.m.

Bustamante art exhibit in Carmel

A sculpture exhibition featuring the papier mache and metal animal sculptures of designer/artisan Sergio Bustamante are exhibited at the MichaelLee Gallery, The Crossroad, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

Bustamante has applied his uncommon perspectives to design fields ranging from clothing to furniture. His best known work, however, continues to be the collection of animal images he has executed in papier mache, brass, copper, wood and silver.

Bustamante's architectural background is evident in the highly intricate fabrication of his sculptures. A papier mache piece requires many fragmentary, molded sections fitted together like a puzzle; the surface detail requires days of painstaking brushwork.

The metal sculptures take form as hundreds of individually cut and hammered pieces are welded to each other to form the skin of brass and copper.

All designs are executed in editions limited from seven to 100 pieces, each numbered and signed. Within a given edition, every sculpture is an original work requiring the same time and care in execution as did the first piece.

Bustamante works with a group of young artisans whom he has taught as he himself has experimented and learned. They regard themselves as a family.

"People who love these things are people with fresh eyes," said Bustamante of his animal sculptures. He believes animals have always been important in home design and considers his animals as sculpture and decorative art objects but also sees them as friends and companions.

Bustamante's sculpture has been exhibited in galleries throughout Europe, Mexico, Canada, and the United States. His animal sculptures have been added to the permanent collection of several museums including the Art Institute of Chicago, and the Craft and Folk Art Museum in Los Angeles.

He has appeared on the Today Show and with Johnny Carson. The Perry Como Easter Show was televised in Bustamante's studio.

The MichaelLee Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Organist Chris Trussell will present free concert

Organist Christopher Trussell will perform works for the organ at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 3 in the Robert Louis Stevenson School chapel, on campus, Forest Lake Rd., Pebble Beach.

Trussell is fine arts director of the Webb School, Claremont. He has given organ recitals throughout the United States, England, Scotland, Wales and South Africa.

He has produced and directed for the theatre and written compositions for churches, theatres and the movie industry. His original musicals — Scrooge, Tom/Prince, One For All, All For One — have been well-received by the public and critics.

Trussell's score for the Warner Bros. film Hot Potato earned him an Academy Award nomination. He has received the Chicago Art Directors Award for the score of the Manned Spacecraft Center's Fly Me to the Moon and Back, and in 1973 he won the Choral Conductors Guild Hymn Tune Competition.

Trussell has also written over 50 television commercials. He is presently writing a new musical to be ready in 1983 and continues to give recitals and lectures.

The concert is free and the public is welcome.

Art Association will present watercolor exhibit

WATERCOLOR AND INK are combined by artist Frieda Golding in her work, Butterflies and Bees. Golding, who is inspired by living things, will exhibit her paintings in a solo exhibition from May 5-June 2 in the Beardsley Room of the Carmel Art Association, Dolores and Sixth, Carmel. The gallery is open from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. daily.

A one-woman exhibition of watercolor paintings by Frieda Golding will be exhibited Wednesday, May 5 through June 2 at the Carmel Art Association Beardsley Room, Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel.

Golding is a graduate of the Albright Art School, University of Buffalo, New York. Her schooling includes special seminars with Charles Burchfield, postgraduate studies at Columbia University, New York, and the Art Institute of Chicago.

She was recently listed in Articles of Renown and is a featured artist in Watercolor - Bold and Free by Lawrence Goldsmith. Golding is the author of two correspondence texts, Watercolor and Color Theory.

Her work has been shown nationally with California Watercolorists. She has recently completed a solo exhibit at the Yuma Art Center in Yuma, Arizona. Her awards include the East Bay Watercolor Competitive and the Pacific Grove Watercolor Show.

Golding's watercolors have been shown at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and are included in several museum collections as well as private collections throughout the United States.

The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Duo will give flamenco performance

A special concert of flamenco music performed by the Martin-Loza duo will be presented at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 2 by the Poetic Drama Institute/Cherry Foundation Theatre Project.

The concert will feature flamenco music in its oldest and purest form which is simply cante — singing — embellished and heightened by the guitar. With sensitive guitar accompaniment, the cante is the original inspiration for the flamenco dance.

Martin-Loza is two brothers, Ruben Martin-Loza, guitarist, and David Martin-

Loza, cantaor. They were born into a flamenco family and studied in America and Spain. As a result, their repertoire includes Andalusian as well as authentic gypsy flamenco. Their mother, Soledad Loza, danced professionally for many years as Enrique y Chelito. Their father, Pedro Martin, is a Spanish gitano, or gypsy.

Tickets are $5. They are available in Monterey at ReCycled Records, 604 Lighthouse and at The Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

Support the cultural element

By RICHARD TYLER

A GROUP of deeply committed citizens is involved in helping the City formulate a new general plan which will provide guidelines for all future ordinances. It will encompass all areas of future growth and consideration for what Carmel is and wants to continue to be.

It is important that all residents who live in Carmel be concerned with the direction and the efforts that the city is taking to produce this important document.

Carmelites have a great deal of pride in their city. There is no other place quite like our town. There may be others that are as beautiful or perhaps even more beautiful; there may be others that devote space and time to longer cultural festivals; but it is the combination of all the beauty and the location and the cultural life that makes Carmel unique among the unique cities.

We must guard this treasure; we must maintain and sustain it. There are aspects of a general plan that are common to all urban areas. But there are special focal points that must be considered when such a plan is being written for a community like Carmel.

I am sure that the committees, commissions, and the city council will see that all the necessary aspects of such a plan are reviewed, that traffic will be addressed; that the business district will be defined; that water and housing and environmentally-sensitive areas will be discussed and given priorities.

At a recent meeting, the very conscientious chairwoman of the local committee, Jane Mayer, spoke to a special consideration and I would like to quote from her speech:

"Carmel has a singular reputation. It is known world-wide for what it once was — a village heavily populated by artists, writers, musicians, and craftsmen. Today it is a musical community and the center of the arts generally. The Chamber Music Society, the Bach Festival, the Symphony, the Carmel Music Society all grew out of Carmel and all receive their major support from Carmel. It is a community of persons who appreciate, participate in, and are dedicated to music, the arts, the crafts, the dance, theater, and photography. Certainly these qualities have brought visitors from all over the world to Carmel.

"But most important, this quality is what has made Carmel unique. But the important factor as regards the general plan is how Carmel perceives itself and what it offers its residents. It seems to me that Carmel's general plan is overlooking an element which is equally important and so important that it should not be de-emphasized by being absorbed into the consideration of these other elements and hence under-emphasized or even so taken for granted that it does not get the attention that it needs.

"For these reasons, I should like to suggest that we add an element to the general plan that addresses itself specifically to the special quality that makes the community unique and call it the socio-cultural element."

The "socio-cultural element" — what does it mean to our community? Cultural activity needs the support of all elements in the community. When traffic is addressed, problems concerning cultural and community events have to be considered. When protection is discussed, we have definite questions that have to be answered to make these events available to the community. The social and cultural aspects of a general plan are so closely interwoven, particularly in a community so heavily involved in such service, that it is impossible not to see the effect of decisions made on each area upon the other.

Parking, which has always been a problem, is a particular one for Sunset Center. Many residents find it difficult to park within the areas of the center and make decisions not to attend when they have to look for parking places in the residential areas surrounding the center. The committee is giving consideration to this problem and will probably make recommendations to the council.

The commitment of the city to this building as the cultural center for the community is a very important part of the general plan and must be realized fully. The growth of cultural involvement continues throughout the country and we must plan for proper usage of the building and the space surrounding it. We must plan for the future of our special and unique environment.

The socio-cultural element can be realized if all the residents who participate or attend events at the Sunset Center would offer their thoughts and time to the meetings now being held at the council chambers in City Hall for the purpose of writing a general plan by which we can live for the next many years.

Music Corner

A fantastic 'Fantasticks'

By LYN BRONSON

THE FANTASTICKS, Hidden Valley's last production of the season, opened last week with much fanfare and will continue on weekends through the middle of May.

And, if you will pardon the pun, it is a fantastic production, brimming over with energy and good humor. A fascinating musical with its multi-layered parable about love and disillusionment, The Fantasticks as a musical may have been around for along time, but it endures well.

John Newcombe and Robert Brill's sets were imaginative and had an easy versatility that adapted so well to every situation that one never tired of them.

Musical director Stephen Tosh was also pianist, arranger and conductor. The solidity of his rhythm and the variety of sounds he produced on the piano were amazing — always incisive, clear and tremendously exciting. Barbara Chapman's harp collaboration added a welcome dash of fantasy to the score.

Director Clyde Ventura, who also has a large hand in the choreography, kept things moving on stage so that action and events moved easily and naturally.

The Mute, brilliantly played by Jimi Defilippis, stole the show several times with his fast-paced pantomime, sometimes lurking in the background and at other times playing an important part in the action. The way he made us believe in an imaginary wall was quite magical.

Velvali de Ayxa played the Girl with authority and William Schaal played the Boy with enthusiasm and believability. Their voices were well cast for their parts and their diction was always clear.

Morgan Stock, as the Girl's father, and Kathy Garrick as the Boy's mother, were both excellent in their roles.

Hilarious were Ann Buelteman as the actress and Chris Graham as Mortimer. Both of these actors were magnificent in their zaniness.

And then we come to Reg Huston, who in every new role I see him in never fails to impress with his rich, strong voice, his impressive authority on stage and his chameleon-like ability to submerge himself in any role.

LAST FRIDAY night my wife and I, doing business as Bronson Concerts, presented the last in a series of three piano recitals at Sunset Center called Young Keyboard Artists. And the concert by Van Cliburn Competition winner Santiago Rodriguez was well attended by an enthusiastic audience of nearly 500 people.

Our original intention was, quite simply, a fishing expedition to see if there was a need on the Monterey Peninsula for a series of piano recitals on a subscription basis.

It has been noted in this column before that, based on single ticket sales, the most popular soloists on other series locally are often pianists. One of the reasons may be that more people are introduced to serious music instruction as children in the form of piano lessons than voice or other instruments, and thus are exposed at an early age to the tradition of piano recitals.

But there are other reasons. Right at the top of the list is certainly the glory of the piano literature itself. In addition to the vast standard repertoire, there is still much unexplored literature, unfamiliar except to experts in the field who find outlets for their adventuresome fare only in the largest cities, on university campuses and on obscure record labels.

Also to an aficionado there is a magic in the sound of the instrument. From the softest to the loudest tones, from the thinnest to the thickest textures, the piano can produce the most extraordinary variety of sound which has inspired composers for approximately 200 years to produce some of the most remarkable works.

And last but not least comes the instrument itself. It is easy to forget that the piano reached its highest stage of historical development during the last quarter of the 19th century.

The piano is the epitome of 19th century technology, and is a glorious machine with an action consisting of thousands of moving parts, mostly made of wood and engineered to tolerances as close as three thousandths of an inch. This technology was so carefully perfected between 1850 and 1900 that it has survived virtually unchanged to the present day.

An example of this late 19th century state-of-the-art perfection made its debut Friday night on the stage of Sunset Center and was almost as of much interest as the concert itself. The piano in question is a magnificent 1893 vintage Steinway concert grand piano which my wife and I found in Los Angeles five years ago.

Although we knew right from the start that it was obviously a noble instrument, there was evidence of much well-intentioned tampering over the years in an attempt to modernize the instrument. Accordingly, Sage Piano Developers in Seaside was commissioned to embark on an ambitious two-year program to restore the instrument to its turn-of-the-century glory.

The piano was stripped down and gutted so that only the exterior case remained. A new soundboard, pinblock and bridge were installed. Then, an enormous amount of custom action work was performed.

In an attempt to restore the exterior case to its former appearance, we contacted the Smithsonian Institution which has an identical twin in its collection which had been used by Paderewski in 75 concerts in his 1893 season.

Armed with photographs from the Smithsonian, we searched for a set of original legs, pedal assembly and music rack; unfortunately, with negative results. However, a craft shop in Los Angeles, which turned out to be a graveyard of discarded, obsolete parts, came up with a set, which while not exactly the same as the originals, was from approximately the same period. When the parts arrived from Los Angeles, we discovered they were culled from three different pianos. Some parts were ebonized, others were mahogany and one leg was pickled green.

RACING AGAINST the clock a few weeks from our deadline of April 23, we were waiting for bass strings from Chicago, brass hardware from San Francisco, spare parts from Steinway in New York and refinishing of the exterior case parts from Salinas.

Two days before our concert we were still not sure the piano would be finished in time, and we went on a condition of "red alert" and requested permission to use the Carmel Music Society's piano which was already backstage at Sunset Center.

Somehow, like a miracle, everything came together at the last moment and at curtain time the Steinway was standing tall on center stage.

RLS school musicians will compete in Los Angeles event

The Robert Louis Stevenson School concert band and chorus will compete in the Six Flag-Magic Mountain Music Festival at the Los Angeles Marriott Hotel Friday, April 30. The chorus and chamber singers will also perform at the Marlborough School in Los Angeles on Friday.

The 52-member concert band will perform Donald Hunsberger's arrangement of Shostakovich's Festive Overture; Introduction to Fantasia by Rex Mitchell, and Washington Post by John Phillip Sousa.

The chorus will perform Hassler's Cantata Domino and five-part Now Sing We All This Day, and Shendendiah by Erb, and Wondrous Cool, Thou Woodland Quiet, by Brahms.

JOIN OR START A POTATO CLUB IN CARMEL

The Woodcraft League of America, of which Ernest Thompson Seaton is chief, has inaugurated a nation-wide plan to establish potato growing clubs.

The boys and girls of Carmel-by-the-Sea should get into this movement. The League has issued a circular giving details of the plan, which may be perused at the office of the Pine Cone. The New York Evening Mail says "We face the future with the immediate prospect of the greatest food shortage our generation has ever known. Every acre of potatoes planted is life insurance against starvation next winter."

Mr. G. H. Powers of the Carmel Development Company has offered the free use of vacant lands in this section to children and adults who will promise to plant at least twenty-four hills of potatoes thereon.

One of the conditions of membership in the clubs is that a member must plant and raise twenty-four hills and donate the proceeds to some war fund.

Prizes will be awarded to boys and girls under eighteen, but older folks are not debarred from membership.

FOR SPORTS SAKE

The Abalone League opened its season last Sunday. One must have lived a couple of decades in Carmel to be able to number the years that this organization of baseball enthusiasts have been active. When they first began chasing the bases, the cottontails were almost the only residents of Carmel Point, when the diamond then was, and they had to move fast to outstep the runners.

When John Campbell, captain of the Reds, first began lining 'em out to left field, he was so small that the bat looked like a wagon-pole in his hands, and he would be hidden behind the catcher's mitt. The pitchers tossed them up easy to him until they learned that he had an ugly swipe, and his short legs were marvelously swift at getting him to first. Johnny needed no favors.

Boys and girls, women and men, nobody was barred in the Abalone League so long as he loved the game; and played for all that was in him. Some never learned the vagaries of a pitched ball, yet played year after year because of loyalty to the league and the sporting blood. It was — and is — the finest example of sport for sport's sake that can be found in America.

FILMING FINISHED AT LOBOS

Shooting of "Upon A Sunday," artistic film being made at Point Lobos under the direction of Nick Cominos of Twentieth Century Fox Studios, was finished this weekend. The picture will have its first showing here at the Hill Theatre in the early summer according to Bob Read, one of the actors in the film, and manager of the Hill and Golden Bough Theatres.

The picture portrays happenings on a Sunday at Point Lobos State Park. Families arrive for picnics, writers stroll and chat about the rocks, a beautiful socialite flits by in a Jaguar. Acting in the film have been Ephraim Doner, Henry and Eve Miller, Missy Lofton and Chase Drake as the Jaguar lady.

The background atmosphere of the film will be provided by the reading of Robinson Jeffers' poetry. Included in the film is a sequence of Poet Jeffers above one of Point Lobos' rocky ocean-filled crevices.

FAR-OUT AUCTION AND COSTUME BALL

Macomber House, the large, log anything-but-a-cabin structure which has been the home the past several years of John B. Morse, son of the late founder of Del Monte Properties, Co., will be the scene Saturday night of a costume ball (come as your favorite movie star — or at least wear evening clothes), the auction, and entertainment of belly dancers, Balkan dancers and Arabian Knights, a bagpiper and a drummer, and classical guitarists.

As befits a group of people who dreamed up the party to benefit the Sculpture Center on Cannery Row, the auction Saturday night will be offering items practically unheard of in regular auction circles — an Esalen massage and rub-down with Kama Sutra oil; a free divorce; and electrocardiogram, reading and a natural light photographic portrait.

Sculptures by the Center's founder, Gordon Newell, and by Jim Crane will be awarded as door prizes.

A buffet supper will be served following a "Parade of Starts."

THE TOWN CRIER

Monterey County riders did very well in the recent spring show sponsored by the California State Horsemen's Association Region 6 in Santa Cruz.

Competing against 400 contestants, honors were brought home by Carmel Valley riders Martha Hogan, Bill Goodrick, Mary Brockman, four forzanis' (Andee, Denise, Eileen and Roy), Mrs. John Bommarito, Regan Frazer and Gerrie Baughman.

Carmel winners included Susan Pullman, Patience Prine, Lori Vandervort and Sharman Smith.

LITTLE LEAGUE OPENS

Promising to do better than Frank Sinatra, Mayor Gunnar Norberg tossed the ball to open the 21st season for the Carmel Little League last Saturday.

Lining the baselines were members of the eight minor and major league teams comprising the league. The seven senior league teams will not see action until May 23 when their season opens.

After an invocation by Father Conrad of Carmel Mission, and the Carmel High Pep Band played the national anthem, all team managers and coaches were introduced. Team sponsors were presented certificates in appreciation of their support.

Carmel Little League president Ken White served as master of ceremonies for the opening. After the ball was rescued by catcher Mike White — the pitch was just a little high — whoops of joy resounded around the baseball diamond and games got underway for the day. Each of the teams in the league played four-inning games.

League play will continue through June 18. The board is considering holding an award banquet that evening to honor division winners, all stars and graduating 12 year olds.

Plans are underway for the yearly fund-raising carnival for Little League. It has been scheduled for May 22 at the little league field.

On stage

The Staff Player Repertory Company stages George Bernard Shaw's classic comedy Androcles and the Lion. This play is a glorious exploration of early Christianity in the Roman Empire. Shaw has a great deal to say about conversion, confusion and turning the other cheek.

Androcles and the Lion is presented at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Indoor Forest Theatre, Santa Rita and Mountain View, Carmel. There will be a matinee at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 16.

Tickets are $5 general and $3 students and seniors. Seating is limited. For reservations, phone 624-1531.

The Wool Gatherer, a compelling drama by William Mastrosimone, is staged at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. Set in a bleak, barely furnished flat, the play centers around the relationship of a young girl and a homeless young truck driver. The pain and isolation of the pair is disclosed as they struggle to break through the emotional walls that separate them.

The Wool Gatherer is presented at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through May 8. There will be no performance on May 6.

Tickets are $4.50 general and $2.50 students and seniors. Due to its forthright language, The Wool Gatherer is recommended for mature audiences.

For further information, phone 624-7491.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant presents two one-act English plays, Box and Cox and a Noel Coward play, Come Into the Garden.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Dinner and curtain are one hour earlier on Sunday.

The price for dinner and the show is $16 on Thursdays, Fridays and Sundays and $16.50 on Saturday. Admission to the show only is $7.

The Studio Theatre Restaurant is located on Dolores near Ocean, Carmel. For reservations, phone 624-1661.

The Wharf Theater stages Gypsy, the first production of its spring/summer season. The musical is based on the life of famed burlesque performer Gypsy Rose Lee.

Painted against the dark reality of a dying vaudeville and the social ruin of the Depression, Gypsy is a glittering tale of Depression-time dreams for the future that captures humor, pathos, heartbreak and triumph.

Gypsy will be presented Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through May 9. Curtain time is 8:30 Fridays and Saturdays, and 8 p.m. Sundays.

Tickets are $8 and $6. The Wharf Theater is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey.

For more information, phone 372-2882.

California's First Theater brings the fun and good humor of melodrama to the stage with From Rags to Riches. The audience is encouraged to boo and hiss the villain and cheer the hero as he rescues the damsel in distress! This 19th century production is performed by the Troupers of the Gold Coast.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday throughout May. Admission is $4 adults, $3 teens and, on Friday, $2 for subteens.

Tickets may be purchased at the First Theater, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey, after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. For further information, phone 375-4916.

The Hartnell College Theatre Department stages the Russian play, He Who Gets Slapped, by Leonold Andreyev at 8 p.m. in the Main Stage on campus, 156 Homestead, Salinas.

He Who Gets Slapped is the story of an upper class man who tires of the hypocrisy of society. He becomes the much-buffed clown in a circus and falls in love with a bareback rider.

The play is performed Friday and Saturday, April 30-May 1 and May 7-8 and on Thursday, May 6.

Admission is $2.50 adults and $1.50 students.

Seating is limited. For reservations, phone 1-758-1221.

NEW, VIEW, FINANCING, TOO

The rare blend of contemporary drama couples with rustic warmth describes this brand new Pebble Beach residence with three bedrooms and two and one half baths, formal dining room and casual family room. Resawn redwood paneling, warm quarry tile & fireplace plus two wood-burning, energy-efficient stoves lend individuality, the kitchen with every convenience and wall-of-glass with superb views will put a sparkle in the chef's eyes. Ocean views from many rooms, expansive decks for privacy or entertaining. $320,000, owner financing available.

WHEN PICTURING CARMEL

This typically Carmel cottage is surrounded by a colorful country garden. Interior space is open and sun-drenched — cathedral ceilings, a hideaway loft, and an updated kitchen with garden window. There are two bedrooms and two baths, and the master suite features sliding glass doors opening onto an inviting, walled patio. Home in insulated and situated on an extra large lot, with two diminutive structures in the back yard, used now as guest sleeping area and workshop; a property well-cared-for and immaculate inside and out. $240,000.

On the Crown of Carmel Point

Hilltop Place is the shortest street on Carmel Point, and one of its few straight ones. It crosses the exact center of the Point, north to south, and it's as high as you can get on these dunes, about 50 feet above the sea. The ocean is just 2 blocks away . . . in three directions.

Hilltop is about the length of a football field. Along its east side are 4 houses, and this is one of them. A spacious parking area fronts the street, then a six foot fence protects the house and its sunny front brick patio.

The house is a study in perfection. The front elevation is wide shiplap siding, interrupted by a handsome redwood entrance door and flanking full length windows on the left, and by a swelling Thermopan bay window on the right.

You step into a marble paved entrance and into the 24 x 17 living room. Ceilings are open beams with redwood planks above. Grass cloth covers the walls. A flush brick fireplace framed in redwood is centered on the south wall. To your left is the comfortable dining area, and beyond it through a redwood door is the kitchen.

This is a masterpiece of efficiency and charm, skylighted, floored in ceramic tile, with dark wood cabinets and excellent appliances all in easy reach. On its other side is a pleasant den, connected by a pass-through butcher block service bar, and with a dutch door opening to the outside patio. Here, too, the floors are tile and the ceiling beamed.

Carpenter takes over as you pass from the den to the master suite. The bedroom is spacious, with corner windows and more beams topped by pine plank ceilings. A short corridor, bordered by louvered closets and a louvered laundry area, leads to the skylighted bath.

The second bedroom and another bath, with skylight, are reached from the living room. This is a private suite, totally removed from the master chamber. And, like the rest of the house, it's loaded with Carmel charm.

The house has been remodeled with taste and affection. It's beautifully located, in prime condition, ready for immediate occupancy. $349,500.

Carmel Point Landmark

Secure within picket fences enclosing its almost-acre site at the tip of Carmel Point, this much admired landmark home, constructed of redwood and guarded by a security gate, has unexcelled views of the ocean, Santa Lucia Mountains and Carmel River Beach curving to Point Lobos. Recent renovation emphasizing craftsmanship and comfort has augmented the timeless charm of the interior featuring beamed ceilings, paneled walls, slate and carpeted floors. Centered by a glass-domed entrance atrium, it contains living room with fireplace of native boulders; country kitchen equipped with every latest cooking convenience; a study; two handsome bedroom and bath suites. Adding to desirability are porches, patios and a covered lanai open to a hidden oriental garden across which is a newer, harmonizing guest house embracing living room with fireplace, kitchen and bath. $2.9 million. Brochure.

Carmel Highlands Serenity

Its earlier-era elegance enhanced by modernization, this spacious, redwood home, also a newer guest house, are set amid patios, pines, cypresses and terraced, low-care landscaping on a 2.4-acre site overlooking Wildcat Cove. Windows frame ocean and garden vistas; beamed wood ceilings and paneling blend with oak cabinetry; parquet, tile and carpeted floors complement decorator willpapers, stone and tilework in the main house with a fireplace in living room and library; dining and breakfast rooms co-ordinated with a "dream" kitchen. Master suite with study and two bathrooms; sitting room, two bedrooms and bath in a second suite; third bedroom and bath suite; utility and storage rooms off a three-car garage are added assets. In the guest house are living room, kitchen facility and bathroom. $1.2 million. Brochure.

New In Pebble Beach

Just completed on an acre site, this magnificent Mediterranean mansion is entered through a courtyard with pillared porticos and a fountain. Soaring ceilings, imported tile, handpegged hardwood and carpeted floors; handcrafted oak cabinetry and tilework; walnut paneling; goldplated fixtures and every amenity ensuring utmost comfort enrich the interior with a fireplace in living room and library. Adding to livableness are walk-in bar and powder room off an impressive entry; dining and breakfast rooms; capacious kitchen; luxurious master suite with two bathrooms; three more bedroom and bath suites; and a flexible-use fifth suite with recreation room, kitchen, bath and outside access also to the parking court and three-car garage. $1.1 million. Brochure.
